COLLATERAL REVIEW IN FEDERAL COURT

21. Is this your first federal petition for writ of habeas corpus challenging this conviction?

☒ Yes ☐ No

(If "YES" SKIP TO #22)

- (a) If no, in what federal court was the prior action filed?

(i) What was the prior case number?

(ii) Was the prior action (CHECK ONE):

Denied on the merits? ☐

Dismissed for procedural reasons? ☐

(iii) Date of decision:

- (b) Were any of the issues in this current petition also raised in the prior federal petition?

☐ Yes ☐ No

- (c) If the prior case was denied on the merits, has the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals given you permission to file this second or successive petition?

☐ Yes ☐ No

CAUTION:

- Exhaustion of State Court Remedies: In order to proceed in federal court you must ordinarily first exhaust your state court remedies as to each ground on which you request action by the federal court. This means that even if you have exhausted some grounds by raising them before the California Supreme Court, you must first present all other grounds to the California Supreme Court before raising them in your federal Petition.
- Single Petition: If you fail to set forth all grounds in this Petition challenging a specific judgment, you may be barred from presenting additional grounds challenging the same judgment at a later date.
- Factual Specificity: You must state facts, not conclusions, in support of your grounds. For example, if you are claiming incompetence of counsel you must state facts specifically setting forth what your attorney did or failed to do. A rule of thumb to follow is — state who did exactly what to violate your federal constitutional rights at what time or place.

GROUND FOR RELIEF

22. State concisely every ground on which you claim that you are being held in violation of the constitution, law or treaties of the United States. Summarize briefly the facts supporting each ground. (e.g. what happened during the state proceedings that you contend resulted in a violation of the constitution, law or treaties of the United States.) If necessary, you may attach pages stating additional grounds and/or facts supporting each ground.

(a) GROUND ONE: PETITIONER IS IN CUSTODY IN VIOLATION OF THE 5TH, 6TH, AND 14TH AMENDMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION, BECAUSE THE EVIDENCE WAS NOT SUFFICIENT TO SUPPORT PETITIONER'S CONVICTION.

Supporting FACTS: Although almost a dozen eyewitnesses testified to having seen the perpetrator of the robberies, not a single individual made a positive identification of petitioner when looking at the photographic lineup. Not one person gave an accurate physical description, although many of the descriptions were very similar to the other eyewitnesses. Not one single witness described a person who even remotely looked like petitioner. More importantly, not a single witness was able to positively identify petitioner. Moreover, someone other than petitioner was selected seven times in the photographic lineup, and three witnesses did not identify anyone. Only 3 of the 11 witnesses tentatively identified petitioner. The identification of petitioner by these witnesses do not constitute substantial evidence indicating any level of certainty, and combined with the witnesses who actually excluded petitioner as the suspect, the probability increases that petitioner was not the person who committed the robberies. The identification evidence presented against petitioner was virtually worthless, on its own tending to prove petitioner's innocence beyond a reasonable doubt. The only significant circumstantial evidence was presented in Court Three that petitioner hired a cab for a short ride. However, it does not demonstrate his involvement in the robbery, particularly when combined with the identification problems that point to his innocence. Carole Pomplin identified petitioner only in court during trial. She could not identify the robber in a photo lineup and she could not identify the robber at the preliminary hearing. Her description of the suspect was dramatically different than the actual appearance of petitioner. Rosetta Fortunato identified

1 petitioner in court at the preliminary hearing and at trial. This despite 2 having been unable to pick him out of a photo lineup. She selected the 3 other person first and told Detective Griffin that the other person looked 4 more like the one who robbed her. (6 R.T. pp. 936-937; 7 R.T. p. 1160.)
5 She thought the other person looked more like the robber because she remem-
6 ered the suspect having more hair than petitioner. (6 R.T. p. 937; 7 R.T.-
7 p. 1165.)

8 With respect to both of these witnesses degree of attention, the trial 9 court did not mention the degree of stress that they both were under and 10 how it affected their degree of attention. They both were struck from behind 11 and (POMPLIN) was knocked to the ground and (FORTUNATO) was knocked into 12 her vehicle. This important fact was not delivered to the jury and therefore,
13 the jury was never made aware of the important fact that these two witnesses'
14 degree of attention was diminished dramatically. Thus, the record reveals 15 that the identification testimony upon which the prosecution based its case
16 was very inconsistent and unreliable. Furthermore, petitioner's appearance 17 in court suggest to these witnesses that he is in police custody for some 18 reason. This suspicion was significantly reinforced by seeing petitioner
19 at the prior court proceedings. It is very unlikely, that in such a stress-20 ful and brief situation that they had any degree of attention as to the 21 description of their attacker or the identity.

22 These two witnesses were no doubt confident that the police had their 23 man and only identified petitioner out of that belief as opposed to recall-
24 ing him from memory. Simply put they did not have the opportunity to view
25 the robber sufficient to make a credible identification. Pomplin described 26 her attacker to police as tall and thin with hair "like Bozo the Clown."
27 (5 R.T. pp. 743, 758; 7 R.T. 1162-1163.)

1 Fortunato was very hysterical after she was robbed and knocked into 2 her vehicle. This witness was under a very high degree of stress which 3 affected her degree of attention, and the jury was not made aware of this 4 very important fact. Pomplin and Fortunato's in-court identification of 5 petitioner was not reliable using the five-factors enumerated in "Biggers,"
6 as a test for reliability of their identification testimony. Ironically, 7 the out-of-court identifications and descriptions by witnesses in the 8 instant case are also reliable, and virtually exonerate petitioner. The 9 factors listed by the Court in Cuevas demonstrate the eyewitness evidence 10 strongly shows the wrong person was convicted in this case.

11 Witnesses had good opportunities to view the culprit. They stared at 12 him, followed him, gave consistent descriptions, and told officers they 13 would be able to identify him if they saw him again. It is significant that 14 the only witnesses to even tentatively select petitioner out of the photo-15 graphic lineup are the same ones who lived, shopped, and did business in 16 the very neighborhood where petitioner lived, shopped, and spent his days.
17 It is likely each of those witnesses had seen petitioner in the neighbor-18 hood and recognized his photograph as being familiar. However, other than 19 Steve Doepker, who did not see the crime but recognized petitioner as he 20 went into the Quick Mart, none of the witnesses told police the perpetrator 21 was someone who they had seen before.

22 An essential component of the due process guarantee by the Fourteenth 23 Amendment that no person shall be made to suffer the onus of a criminal 24 conviction except sufficient proof-defined as evidence necessary to convince 25 a trier of fact beyond a reasonable doubt of the existence of every element 26 of the offense.

27 Based on the totality of the circumstances; the tentative identifications

1 of petitioner by these witnesses do not constitute substantial evidence
2 and when combined with the witnesses who actually excluded petitioner as a
3 suspect, the probability increases that petitioner was not the perpetrator
4 who committed the robberies. The evidence here does not support petitioner's
5 conviction for the charges discussed above, and to sustain those convictions
6 violates petitioner's State and Federal Constitutional right to due process
7 under the law. His conviction must be reversed.

- (b) GROUND TWO: PETITIONER IS IN CUSTODY IN VIOLATION OF THE 5TH, 6TH AND 14TH AMENDMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION, BECAUSE THE TRIAL COURT DEPRIVED PETITIONER OF DUE PROCESS, A FAIR TRIAL, AND THE RIGHT TO PRESENT A DEFENSE WHEN IT EXCLUDED TESTIMONY ABOUT THIRD-PARTY CULPABILITY WHICH RAISED A REASONABLE DOUBT AS TO PETITIONER'S GUILT.

Supporting FACTS:

A man by the name of Michael Burgess was arrested in February, 1999 for the series of robberies on elderly people that petitioner was later accused of. (See Police arrest man in Robberies, Beatings, S.D. Union (Feb. 22, 1999) P. B-3) He was later released when the robberies petitioner was charged with occurred while Burgess was in custody. (1 R.T. p. 23) Defense counsel expressed that he did not intend to accuse Burgess of committing the crimes, since he could not have committed these particular robberies. Counsel did want to compare the investigative measures that were taken by law enforcement in connection with the arrest of Burgess with the relatively lackadaisical investigation of petitioner. (1 R.T. pp. 23-24.) The prosecution objected to any mention by the defense of the existence of additional suspects. (1 R.T. p. 24) Counsel argued the investigative reports produced regarding Burgess were extensive, including detailed surveillance reports describing Burgess's every move. In contrast, there were no reports provided to the defense regarding the week petitioner was under surveillance. (1 R.T. pp. 25-26, 27-29, 31-32.) Counsel primarily wanted to argue to the jury there were other individuals investigated, and that law enforcement appeared to be far more careful in the records kept of those investigations than in the investigation of the person who was ultimately put on trial for the robberies. (Ibid.) Counsel pointed out that the only reason he was even aware of the surveillance of petitioner was because of a "two-line blurb" in Griffin's arrest report. (1 R.T. p. 30) The prosecution agreed that in addition to Burgess, a third person was arrested in relation to this case and that 80 to 100 other's were investigated. (1 R.T. p. 33) Counsel was never provided with the information concerning a third person being arrested. This information was only mentioned during trial. (1 R.T. p. 33) The court ruled petitioner would be limited to asking whether surveillance efforts are "generally" documented with detailed reports, but said he would not be allowed to pursue any questioning about people who were investigated related to these particular crimes. (1 R.T. p. 34-36) The court, while stating that it would accept briefing on this issue, made it very clear petitioner would be precluded from any inference that there were other people, indeed many other people, they had

1 suspected of committing these crimes. To the extent the jury was prevented
2 from hearing about the existence of these people, and in particular from 3 hearing about the haphazard investigation of petitioner in relation to the 4 investigation of others, petitioner was denied the right to defend by the 5 court's restrictions on the presentation of evidence that a third person
6 had committed the charged crime, the trial court erred.

7 Under the Fifth, Sixth and Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution
8 a criminal defendant has an unquestionable right to present relevant 9 exculpatory evidence to the jury. This necessarily includes evidence that 10 calls into doubt the reliability of the evidence on which the state is 11 relying.

12 Where the state has interfered with the defendant's right to do this 13 a subsequent conviction cannot stand. A criminal defendant also has the 14 right to introduce relevant evidence under Article I, Section 28(d) of the 15 California Constitution. The California Supreme Court has expressly held 16 a criminal defendant has the right to present relevant evidence that a 17 third party committed the crime of which defendant is accused.

18 The United States Supreme Court has also held that if third person 19 evidence is excluded then petitioner was denied the right to defend by the 20 court's restrictions on the presentation of evidence that a third person
21 had committed the charged crime.

22 Such evidence may not be excluded under Evid. Code §352 if it is 23 capable of raising even a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt, (Ibid)
24 Furthermore, even hearsay of this type is nonetheless admissible because 25 a state may not mechanistically apply its rules of evidence to defeat a 26 defendant's constitutional right to a fair trial which, happened in the 27 instant case.

1 Here, law enforcement was convinced of petitioner's guilt based on the 2 taxi driver's statement, and despite mounds of exculpatory evidence, the 3 investigation of petitioner was cursory compared to that of other individuals.
4 The jury should have been allowed to hear what law enforcement did in other 5 investigations, and compare it to the perfunctory methods used regarding 6 petitioner. The failure of law enforcement to investigate petitioner with 7 the same vigor could be enough to raise a reasonable doubt in the minds
8 of the jury regarding petitioner's guilt.

9 Nor could this evidence be excluded under Evidence Code Z352 on grounds
10 that it was cumulative of other defense evidence. It would have taken no 11 more than one witness to describe how other investigations were conducted 12 in a more thorough fashion. Moreover, the evidence lost through the failure 13 to accurately record the time spent on surveillance was crucial to petition-
14 ner's defense. It would have fully corroborated petitioner's witnesses, 15 and provided ample reasonable doubt as to whether petitioner was "the North 16 Park robber."

17 Evidence regarding third party culpability is not made inadmissible
18 merely because it is not sufficient to sustain a finding of guilt against 19 the third party:

20 The principles of law are clear. California courts rejected
21 the rule that evidence of third party culpability could be 22 admitted only if there was a 'substantial proof of a 23 probability' of guilt. Rather, the court held that the 24 standard for admitting evidence of third party culpability
25 was the same as for other exculpatory evidence: the evidence
26 had to be relevant under Evidence Code section 350, and its 27 probative value could not be 'substantially outweighed by the risk of undue delay, prejudice, or confusion' under Evidence Code section 352.

26 Our Supreme Court held that in evaluating admissibility of third-27 party culpability evidence, "[t]he court's proper inquiry was limited

1 to whether this evidence could raise a reasonable doubt as to defendant's
2 guilt and then applying section 352." The Court explained that this type
3 of evidence should be evaluated "like any other evidence: if relevant 4 it is admissible (Evid. Code, §350) unless its probative value is 5 substantially outweighed by the risk of undue delay, prejudice or confusion
6 (Evid. Code, §352). The Court added:

7 We recognize that an inquiry into the admissibility of such 8 evidence and the balancing required under section 352 will always 9 always turn on the facts of the case. Yet courts must weigh 10 those facts carefully....Furthermore, court must focus on the 11 actual degree of risk that the admission of relevant evidence
12 may result in undue delay, prejudice and confusion. As Wigmore
13 observed, 'if the evidence is really of no appreciable value no harm is done in admitting it; but if the evidence is in truth calculated to cause the jury to doubt, the court should not attempt to decide for the jury that this doubt is purely speculative and fantastic but should afford the accused every opportunity to create that doubt.' (1A Wigmore, Evidence Tillers (Tillers rev.ed. 1980) §139, p. 1724.

14 Courts have "warned trial courts to avoid hasty conclusions that third-15 party culpability evidence is 'incredible'; this determination, we have 16 affirmed, 'is properly the province of the jury.'"

17 The exclusion of this critical evidence requires that the judgments
18 of conviction be reversed. The members of the California Supreme Court 19 engaged in a vigorous debate concerning the appropriate standard for 20 assessing the prejudice resulting from this type of error. The court's 21 majority opinion concluded a misapplication of Evidence Code section 352
22 to exclude defense evidence, including third party culpability evidence, 23 was essentially state law error.

24 The exclusion of this critical evidence requires that the judgments
25 of conviction be reversed. Petitioner contends the prosecution's evidence 26 in this case was so weak as to be legally insufficient to support the 27 judgments of conviction. However, even assuming this court disagrees, it

1 must still conclude that the evidence of petitioner's guilt was not
2 "overwhelming" and that serious problems exist with the identifications
3 of petitioner as the perpetrator in all counts.

4 Furthermore, the length of the jury's deliberations and the request
5 to hear critical testimony a second time show this case was a close case
6 in the minds of the jury. Also, the fact the jury did not convict on all 7 counts indicates a close case overall.

8 "Apparently it was important for the police to have someone in jail
9 for this crime for reasons related to a public outcry and pressure from 10 police brass to make an arrest," which is apparent because petitioner was 11 the second person arrested.

12 Under these circumstances, an error in excluding evidence that a 13 third party was investigated and was believed to have committed the 14 robberies of which petitioner was accused cannot conceivably be deemed 15 harmless under any standard and there can be no alternative to a finding 16 that the trial judge erred and that reversal is required.

- (c) GROUND THREE: PETITIONER'S MOTION FOR A NEW TRIAL SHOULD HAVE BEEN GRANTED BASED ON A LACK OF EVIDENCE, AS WELL AS MISCONDUCT BY LAW ENFORCEMENT, BRADY VIOLATION, PERJURY AND A BIASED JURY THAT RENDERED PETITIONER'S TRIAL FUNDAMENTALLY UNFAIR IN VIOLATION OF THE 5TH, 8TH, & 14TH AMENDMENT OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION.

Supporting FACTS: Officer Meaux testified he showed the photographic lineup to both John Burkholder and Dennis Loper on the same day. He placed both reports in a single envelope, and left the envelope on Detective Griffin's desk. (7 R.T. pp.1121-1122, 1127.) Loper was the prosecution witness who most closely observed the robbery suspect on February 24, and assisted the police in preparing a composite drawing of the suspect. He was also the only witness who positively identified petitioner in the courtroom as being the individual he observed on that day. However, when he looked at the photographic lineup, he positively excluded petitioner, and was 70 to 80 percent certain about his identification of another person. (7 R.T. p.1123.) The report regarding Loper's viewing of the photographic lineup was never produced or provided to the defense, but was only discovered during Loper's testimony and confirmed by the testimony of Detective Meaux. Griffin deliberately told the prosecutor that Loper never looked at a lineup, but he did provide the report from the same envelope regarding John Burkholder, whose testimony at trial was consistent with his viewing of the curbside lineup and the photographic display. (7 R.T. p.1157.) This evidence would have been favorable to my case because it showed that this witness picked someone else in the lineup. If the jury knew this then they might not believe his testimony. This would have cast serious doubt on the credibility of this key witness and continued to make the state's case against me weaker. This would also mean that no reliable witness could testify he or she saw me near the scene of the crime. If the detective had disclosed this evidence, the outcome of my trial would have been different because I would not have been convicted. The state could not have proven my guilt beyond a reasonable doubt if the jury did not believe this key witness. In summary, this evidence was material to my case, the detective did not disclose it, and it affected the outcome of my trial.

In addition to the Brady violation in failing to produce the exculpatory report of Loper's identification of a different person, Officer James Troussel testified untruthfully concerning how he and his partner stopped petitioner on February 24 shortly after the Kamien robbery. Troussel described spotting petitioner driving and testified they followed petitioner through numerous turns while petitioner was speeding and appearing to be trying to evade the officers. (4A R.T. p.607; 5 R.T. p.663, 683.)

GROUND THREE CONTINUED

1 The report of the traffic stop did not say petitioner engaged in any 2 kind of evasive maneuvers, or speeding describing only that the car was 3 seen as it traveled east on Madison, and was stopped after turning on 4 Wilson street. (5 R.T. p.665.) Nor was petitioner given a ticket for speeding
5 if in fact he was. The tape recording of the communications with dispatch
6 conclusively demonstrated the stop was entirely routine, with no actions
7 taken by petitioner to raise any suspicions. (See Court Exhibit B-1 C.T. - 8 pp. 91-92.) The tape also contradicted Troussel's testimony that the 9 description of the suspect as he heard on the radio was of a light-skinned
10 Black Male. (4A R.T. p. 602; 5 R.T. pp. 668; C.T. pp. 81-93.)

11 A letter from the jury foreman admitted the jury did not 12 think the prosecution met its burden of proof. The day after 13 returning guilty verdicts against petitioner, the jury foreman
14 sent a letter to District Attorney Paul Pfingst, criticizing 15 the "sloppy prosecution" of petitioner's case. (C.T. pp. 104-16 105.) The letter described gaps in the evidence that raised 17 "issues" that had to be resolved by the jury without the 18 benefit of actual evidence. The letter concluded by stating 19 "had the jury been less proactive or less intelligent there 20 would not have been a conviction and a dangerous criminal
21 would be back on the streets." (C.T. p. 105.)

22 It cannot be disputed that a defendant has a constitutional
23 right to a trial by impartial jurors, as guaranteed by the Sixth 24 and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution and 25 Article I, Section 16 of the California Constitution. A single 26 juror who is partial or motivated by prejudice deprives a 27 defendant of his Sixth Amendment right to trial by an impartial

1 jury.

2 It is not even necessary for the juror to disclose his/her bias to other
3 jurors for the misconduct to be prejudicial. One biased juror deprives a 4 defendant of his right to a fair trial. Due process requires "a jury capable 5 and willing to decide the case solely on the evidence before it, and a trial 6 judge ever watchful to prevent prejudicial occurrences and to determine the 7 effect of such occurrences when they happen.

8 The existence of a biased juror so infects the entire trial process and 9 requires reversal even without a demonstration of prejudice. Although it is 10 possible for a defendant to receive a fair trial if the juror sets aside his 11 or her biases and decides the case fairly, based on the evidence presented,
12 the foreman's letter showed the opposite occurred in petitioner's case. A 13 simple reading of the letter demonstrates the jury did not believe the 14 prosecution presented substantial evidence against petitioner. That in itself
15 is troubling, but further comments in the letter that the jury took a 16 "proactive" role in deciding upon petitioner's guilt implies exactly the 17 type of misconduct by the juror that requires reversal.

18 Once misconduct has been established, prejudice is presumed; reversal 19 is required unless the reviewing court finds, upon examination of the entire 20 record, there is no substantial likelihood that any juror was improperly 21 influenced to the defendant's detriment. This determination is a mixed ques-
22 tion of law and fact subject to an appellate court's independent determination.

23 The misconduct clearly requires reversal. The jury has a responsibility 24 to decide a case on the basis of the facts presented at trial alone. They 25 must find that the State presented evidence proving the guilt of the defendant 26 "beyond a reasonable doubt." Evidence gained outside of the courtroom, or the 27 opinions of the people in the media, cannot contribute to this finding.

1 The evidence against petitioner was weak and the exculpatory evidence
2 was very strong. Petitioner filed a motion for a new trial on the ground
3 that the verdict was contrary to the law and evidence, the jury was not
4 impartial and relied on evidence not presented at trial, and that law
5 enforcement misconduct and perjury rendered the trial fundamentally unfair.
6 (C.T. pp. 135-143.)

7 The very nature of the misconduct itself is centered around the failure
8 of the prosecution to adequately prove its case. There is substantial likeli-9 hood a less "proactive" jury would not have convicted petitioner of these 10 crimes. The trial court erred in failing to grant petitioner's motion 11 based on clear evidence of misconduct by the jury, and his conviction must 12 now be reversed.

13 A defendant is entitled to a decision by the judge as to the sufficiency 14 of the evidence, giving due weight to conflicts and inconsistencies in 15 the evidence and the credibility of the testimony of witnesses. In doing so, 16 the court must use its own determinative discretion as distinguished from the 17 conclusions reached by the jury. In passing on a motion for new trial it is 18 not only the power but also duty of trial court to consider the weight of 19 the evidence.

20 During the preliminary hearing, the prosecution presented defense
21 counsel with information that Detective Griffin gave a prosecution witness,
22 a local transient, Steven Doecker $300.00 dollars and put him up in a hotel
23 for almost two weeks before the hearing. A subsequent investigation revealed 24 that this witness did receive this and other monies from a District Attorney 25 Investigator and Detective Griffin the day of the trial and appeared in 26 court intoxicated, but was allowed to testify.

27 This important fact was acknowledged by Doecker during the preliminary

1 hearing on cross-examination and not contested or rebutted by the prosecution.
2 (R.T. p. 136, 139.) And on recross (R.T. p. 140.) The prosecution informed
3 defense counsel that Griffin gave Doecker money. (6 R.T. p. 989-990.) This 4 same witness testified that he gave the police a description of petitioner.
5 (6 R.T. p. 998.) This information was not in any of the police reports
6 generated concerning the robbery of Mrs. Fortunato. This was an obvious fals-7 ehood that the prosecutor knew or should have known was false when compared 8 to Doecker's actual statement to the police on the day of the robbery.

9 The duty of law enforcement officer's is to use every legitimate means 10 to bring about a just conviction is no greater than their duty to refrain from 11 improper methods calculated to produce a wrongful conviction. The California
12 Supreme Court has observed that "sufficiently gross police conduct could lead 13 to a finding that conviction of the accused would violate his constitutional 14 right to Due Process of Law." The United States Supreme Court has recognized 15 that situations may arise where the "conduct of law enforcement agents is so
16 outrageous that Due Process principles would absolutely bar the government 17 from invoking judicial process to obtain a conviction."

18 Examples of such outrageous conduct that resulted in a "Miscarriage of 19 Justice" that occurred during petitioner's trial are as follows;

20 (1) Detective Griffin willfully, wantonly and deliberately
21 withheld exculpatory evidence from the prosecution and the defense.

22 (2) Detective Griffin willfully and purposely gave a 23 prosecution witness money in order to testify favorably for the 24 prosecution.

25 (3) A district Attorney investigator also gave this same witness
26 money on several occasions.

27 (4) Officer Troussel willfully, wantonly and blatantly committed perjury

1 during trial.

2 (5) The prosecutor used deceptive and reprehensible
3 methods to persuade the court and the jury.

4 (6) The prosecutor knowingly presented false and 5 perjured testimony during trial.

6 (7) The jury was bias against petitioner.

8 The actions by Officer Troussel, Detective Griffin and the Prosecutor 9 was so outrageous that it was a shock to the conscience that violated the 10 fundamental fairness of petitioner's trial, resulting in a "Miscarriage of 11 Justice" all required by the Due Process Caluse of the Fourteenth Amendment
12 to the U.S. Constitution. By giving Doepker the money, Detective Griffin
13 along with the District Attorney Investigator induced false testimony, 14 but they bribed him as defined in P.C. §137(a)(c).

15 Furthermore, Doepker was not placed in the Witness Protection Program as 16 outlined in P.C. §14020 nor was this witness deemed a victim as defined in 17 P.C. §14026.5 and in subdivision (a) of section 14021 selected by local or 18 state prosecutors to receive services under the program established pursuant 19 to this title because he has been or may be victimized due to the testimony 20 he gave during petitioner's trial.

21 Moreover, there was no court order to direct the county auditor to draw 22 his warrant upon the county treasurer in favor of such witness fees pursuant 23 to P.C. §1329(a). The district attorney investigator also induced false 24 testimony and bribed this witness as described in P.C. §137(a)(c).

25 As the representative of the people, a prosecutor is not only obligated 26 to fight earnestly and vigorously to convict the guilty, but also uphold the 27 orderly administration of justice as a servant and representative of the law.

1 Hence, a prosecutor's duty is more comprehensive than a single obligation to 2 press for conviction.

3 The basic principle is clear enough: The government is obliged to 4 disclose pertinent material evidence favorable to the defense, and this 5 applies not only to matters of substance, but to matters relating to the 6 credibility, of government witnesses. The prosecution's failure to disclose
7 benefits to a witness violates due process in circumstantial evidence cases.

8 In the instant case, not only did Detective Griffin casually withhold 9 extremely exculpatory information and give money to a witness to testify
10 along with the district attorney's investigator, the prosecutor herself
11 showed no compunction about leading Officer Troussell and Steven Doepker 12 through testimony that she knew was blatantly false.

13 The prosecutor's knowing use of perjured testimony is a constitutional 14 error which carries an unusually high risk of affecting the judgment, and 15 requires reversal. Whether the prosecutor's error results from affirmative 16 misconduct or omission the error may deprive a criminal defendant of the 17 guarantee of fundamental fairness and thereby violates the due process
18 clause of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

19 Misconduct by a prosecutor may also violate a defendant's right to a 20 reliable determination of penalty under the Eighth Amendment to the U.S.
21 Constitution. In addition, under California Law a prosecutor who uses 22 deceptive or reprehensible methods to persuade either the court or jury 23 has committed misconduct even if such action does not render the trial
24 fundamentally unfair.

25 The misconduct stated above and the miscarriage of justice in conjunction 26 with the constitutional violations requires reversal. The trial court erred
27 in failing to grant petitioner's motion based on clear evidence of misconduct

1 by the jury, and his conviction must now be reversed. On their own, the above
2 described instances of misconduct by the government and the jury deprived 3 petitioner of his right to due process of law, his Sixth Amendment right to 4 an impartial jury, and his Eighth Amendment right to a reliable determination
5 of guilt and penalty creating a miscarriage of justice.

6 When combined with the scarcity of evidence against petitioner, as well
7 as the solid proof of his evidence, there can be no alternative to a finding 8 that the trial judge erred in refusing petitioner's request for a new trial, 9 and reversal is required.

- (d) GROUND FOUR: PETITIONER IS IN CUSTODY IN VIOLATION OF THE 6TH & 14TH AMENDMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION, BECAUSE THE TRIAL COURT ERRED IN REFUSING DEFENSE COUNSEL'S REQUEST FOR JUROR INFORMATION BECAUSE A BIASED JURY CONVICTED PETITIONER DESPITE IT'S AWARENESS THAT THE PROSECUTION DID NOT SATISFY ITS BURDEN OF PROOF.

Supporting FACTS: The jury foreman wrote the San Diego District Attorney an extremely provocative letter complaining about the substandard performance by the prosecution in this case, and concluded with a comment that "had the jury been less proactive or intelligent, there would not have been a conviction...." (C.T. p. 105.) Defense counsel filed a request for a hearing and the disclosure of juror information for investigating whether the jury's "proactive" deliberations included misconduct that required reversal. (C.T. pp. 98-105.) The trial court disagreed with counsel's assessment of the letter. (12 R.T. pp. 1607-1608.) The court denied petitioner's request for disclosure of juror information. (12 - R.T. p. 1610.) The trial court erred in not conducting a hearing to determine whether any jurors objected to being contacted by the defense, or even to determine whether there was, in fact, misconduct by the jury that required a new trial. Here of course, the trial court denied the defense the opportunity to discuss the problems with the members of the jury. The failure of the court to grant petitioner's request deprived petitioner of his Sixth Amendment right to have competent counsel for the preparation of a motion for a new trial, created a miscarriage of justice, and prevented any means of determining the extent of the damage done by the jurors attitudes toward the defendant, his attorney, and the failure of the prosecution to present substantial evidence. Petitioner showed good cause and established prima facie that he was entitled to the information and the court's error in refusing to grant access to juror information requires reversal. There is, however, information in the form of the foreman's letter to the district attorney, which give rise to a strong inference of misconduct. Because the court denied the defense the opportunity to investigate the issues raised by the letter, petitioner was deprived of his constitutional right to a fair, open hearing and a meaningful record on appeal, which in turn has created a systematic, reversible error. Where procedural due process is denied, reversal is required and no prejudice need to be shown. Structural defects include the denial of the right to fully present a defense, which in this case was the right to fully develop and present the Motion for a New Trial—and, by extension, to create as strong an appellate record as possible. Petitioner was denied the structural order expected of a criminal trial in compliance with the fundamental notions of fairness and due process of law, and as such defies "analysis by

1 harmless-error standards." As a result of the court's failure to provide
2 petitioner reasonable means to investigate probable jury misconduct,
3 petitioner's conviction must be reversed per se.

4 However, even under the Chapman harmless error analysis petitioner
5 should prevail. On its face, the letter from the foreman describes a jury
6 that had questions about the evidence, and proceeded to speculate in a 7 "proactive" manner on the answers to those questions. The jury was not 8 impartial and relied on evidence that was not presented at the trial. The 9 jury chose to convict an innocent man as a favor to Paul Pfingst who 10 should be grateful for their "proactive (pro-prosecution/law enforcement?)" 11 stance. They chose to ignore that not one witness described the robber as 12 being taller than 6 feet 4 inches tall and that the majority of the witnesses 13 described the robber as dark skinned with a thin to medium build.

14 A defendant in a criminal case has a constitutional right to have the 15 charges against him or her determined by a fair and impartial juror. This 16 reality is why every juror must take an oath to "render true verdict 17 according only to evidence presented to you and the instructions of the 18 court." CCP Section 232(b).

19 An important corollary to this rule is that a juror cannot "inject
20 his or her own expertise into the jury deliberations." Jury misconduct 21 under §1181 (3) has long been considered grounds for a new trial.

22 It is not at all clear that had the defense been allowed to conduct
23 a competent investigation, the results would still point to petitioner's
24 ultimate conviction beyond a reasonable doubt. The court erred in thwar-25 ting any investigation into the possibility these jurors were influenced 26 by extrinsic evidence or undue bias. The court must determine whether the 27 jury in this case did act "intelligently and justly" and be satisfied

1 that the probative force of the evidence viewed as a whole was suffi-
2 cient to sustain the verdict rendered. Petitioner showed good cause and
3 this mistake by the court implicates the Sixth and Fourteenth Amendment

THE FOURTH DISTRICT COURT OF APPEAL AFFIRMED IN PART AND REVERSED IN PART AND REMANDED WITH DIRECTIONS. JUDGE DOMNITZ AMENDED THE ORDER OF THE FOURTH DISTRICT COURT OF APPEAL. HE WILLFULLY ABUSED HIS DISCRETION AND WONTONLY VIOLATED THE INTEGRITY OF THE APPEAL COURT. THIS IS IN DIRECT VIOLATION OF THE DUE PROCESS CLAUSE OF THE FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT OF THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION.

SUPPORTING FACTS

On January 8, 2002 the Fourth District Court of Appeal (Fourth DCA) affirmed in part and remanded with directions. (See Slip Op. D035782 (Jan. 8, 2002).) The court concluded petitioner had made a prima facie showing of good cause for the disclosure of juror information, and remanded with an order to release personal juror identifying information to defense counsel, for the purpose of investigating a motion for a new trial. (Slip Op. D035782, pp. 20-22.) On June 3, 2002, Judge Peter Deddah ordered the release of confidential jury records to defense counsel, as ordered by the Fourth DCA, and ordered the Jury Services Department to release the juror's addresses to counsel. C.T. p. 10.)

On July 12, 2002, the case was assigned to Judge H. Ronald Domnitz. He adamantly refused to act upon the substantive nature of the Court of Appeal's order by amending the June 3rd, 2002 order. (C.T. pp. 14.) On September 13, 2002 Judge Domnitz sustained the objections of five jurors, and their identifying information was not released to defense counsel. (C.T. p. 19) On December 23, 2002, defense counsel stated he would not file a motion for a new trial and that the investigation is still ongoing, and petitioner was remanded to the DOC. (C.T. p. 24.)

Petitioner constructively filed a notice of appeal on January 6, 2003. (C.T. p. 8.)

Judge Domnit'z refusal to conduct the proceeding in the manner required by the court of appeal was unreasonable because it violated petitioner's

1 State and Federal due process rights guaranteed by the Sixth and Fourteenth
2 Amendments of the U.S. Constitution. Thus, Judge Domnitz willfully abused
3 discretion and violated the integrity of the higher court in a manner that 4 was constitutionally inept, since he does not have the authority to ignore
5 the remand orders.

6 Defense counsel objected to the court's limited order and the following 7 discussion ensued:

8 MR. WADLER: Yes, your Honor. Actually for the record, I've 9 read the appellate court decision a number of times on this 10 issue. And it appears to me that whether it be an oversight 11 on their part or something they intended. I don't know, but 12 the appellate court decision at page 21 clearly states that on remand, the trial court shall 'issue a new order granting Gunn's request and shall release to Gunn's counsel personal juror identifying information regarding the jurors in this case.'

13 THE COURT: Doesn't say anything in here that we're to ignore
14 the code section.

15 MR. WADLER: I understand that. That's why I'm raising the 16 issue, in order to preserve it.

17 ...

18 I fully recognize the tension between the language in that 19 appellate court decision and the statute itself.

20 THE COURT: I appreciate that you're doing that and that's 21 what a good lawyer should do, and I appreciate that.
22 Although I will tell you that I'm sure that the Court of 23 Appeals had in mind the procedures set forth in the statute.

24 ...

25 MR. WADLER: For the record, it would be the defense's
26 position that the appellate court can order the release
27 of all of it. I understand what the court is saying. I don't think we need to belabor that.

28 The other issue that I have is obviously the court has 29 received correspondence from what I believe the indicated
30 five jurors that had indicated that - well, I guess I'm 31 asking the court specifically what those five jurors
32 indicated factually to fall within the provisions of 239,
33 subdivision dv.

1 THE COURT: Well, one. I think the code says if they don't 2 want to be contacted, they are not contacted, period. But 3 just to make it - I'm not going to give up anything. One
4 juror says one word, 'privacy.' Another said nothing.
5 Another one said nothing, other than 'I don't want to.'

6 MR WADLER: I guess all I'm getting at, did they specifically
7 say, did they write and respond?

8 THE COURT: You've never seen the form letter?

9 MR. WADLER: I've never seen anything.

10 THE COURT: You've never seen the form letter that went 11 out in this case? You're certainly entitled to see the 12 form letter.

14 Here's what the form letter says. If I had a blank one,
15 which I don't have. I'd show it to you. It says from me-
16 what it is, it says from Joe Schmoe, one of the jurors, 17 'I Joe Schmoe, do or do not object to allowing the 18 court to disclose my name, address, and telephone
19 number,' bla, bla, bla. Okay. 'Although not required,
20 below you may state your reasons for why you either
21 do or do not object. 'Okay. And then it says, 'I 22 either intend to appear or I don't intend to appear.'
23 Okay.

24 Those who object, three said nothing - two said nothing,
25 one said 'privacy,' one said the person's afraid
26 of the people who participate in this case,' and the 27 other one thought we already gave out the addresses and was upset.

That's all there is. I've given you as much as I can.
(Aug. 2 R.T. pp. 18-20.)

The trial court's denial of petitioner's request, based solely on the juror's objections to disclosure, violated petitioner's fundamental constitutional rights to due process and jury trial. For this reason, this provision of Code of Civil Procedure Section 237, subdivision (d), is unconstitutional as applied in this case. Even if the statute itself is constitutional, however, the procedure followed in this case violated the plain language of the statute, and jurors' objections were sustained with

1 no showing that they were unwilling to be contacted. Furthermore, defense
2 counsel was never showed a copy of the letter that was sent out to the jurors.

3 During the course of the proceedings, Domnitz offered no reasonable
4 explanation for assuming a novel authority to modify the Fourth DCA's
5 remand order, changing the date for compliance and limiting the parties 6 to written materials that lacked the results of investigative measures, such 7 as defense counsel or a defense investigator having the ability to solicit 8 information on juror's bias or misconduct by conducting interviews with 9 the juror themselves.

10 Without this recourse, the defense would be severely damaged because, 11 as the Court of Appeal noted, "[I]t could be reasonable inferred from the 12 jury foreperson's letter that the jury may have engaged in improper actions 13 in proactively deciding GUNN's guilt or innocence." (Slip Op. at pp. 17-14 22.)

15 If, as assumed by the trial court in this case, a mere objection must 16 be sustained with no further information, virtually all of subdivision (d)
17 is surplusage. This is certainly not the case. If the Legislature had 18 meant, "juror objections shall be sustained," period, it certainly would 19 have said so. Rather, the Legislature states the juror's protest shall be 20 sustained only if the defendant fails to show good cause (in this case 21 already established by the Fourth DCA's ruling), the record discloses a 22 compelling reason not to disclose, or the juror is unwilling to be 23 contacted. The language of the statute does not assume that a mere 24 objection is based upon a juror's unwillingness.

25 The trial court's letter to the jurors was not the equivalent of a 26 request from counsel to speak to the jurors. The letter does not ask the 27 jurors whether they are willing to speak with counsel about the case; nor

1 does it require the jurors to disclose the basis for the objection.
2 Rather, it merely asks the jurors to check a box stating they "do" or 3 "do not" object to the disclosure. It fails to mention that the Fourth
4 DCA ordered the release of their information. It invites the jurors to 5 come to the hearing, and also provides a place to write down their 6 reasons for objecting, but specifies neither is necessary. (See, Sealed
7 C.T.) The court's letter and the juror's responses were only the 8 beginning of the process described by section 237, subdivision (d).

9 Out of the five jurors who objected in writing to the release of 10 the information, only one juror's response reasonably infers an 11 unwillingness to discuss the case further. (Sealed C.T. p. 9 [juror had 12 already been contacted by someone and was "outraged" that the information
13 had been released].) An inquiry to the other jurors who objected very well 14 might have revealed they were perfectly willing to discuss the case, but 15 did not want their home addresses revealed. It is reasonable probable 16 jurors would have been willing to discuss the case on the phone, or at 17 a less intimate location than in their own homes. It is also possible the 18 jurors would not object to the release of their personal information if 19 they had been reassured the information would not be provided to the defen-
20 dant. The ascertainment of such information is appropriate as the Legislature 21 directs the trial court to "otherwise limit disclosures in any manner it
22 deems appropriate." (Code of Civ. Proc., §237, subd. (d).)

23 Unwillingness to have one's home address and telephone numbers
24 disclosed is not the same as unwillingness to talk to counsel about the 25 case. In addition, the letter does not inform the jurors that the Fourth 26 DCA had found good cause for the request, and it offers no explanation for 27 the request. Under these circumstances, it cannot be assumed the jurors

1 would have refused to speak with counsel if they could do so without 2 disclosure of their home addresses and telephone numbers, of if the purpose
3 of counsel's inquiries had been explained to them.

4 When a reviewing court modifies or reverses a judgement with directions
5 the lower court has no discretion but to follow the dictates of those 6 directions to the letter of the law. The role of the trial court, upon a 7 judgement of reversal by the Fourth DCA with directions to the court below 8 in accordance with the views therein expressed the court below, has been 9 well defined as 'but to follow the directions thus given'. The courts have 10 repeatedly adhered strictly to this rule. the trial court is bound by the 11 directions given and has no authority to retry any other issue or to make 12 any other findings.

13 Its authority is limited wholly and solely to following the directions
14 of the reviewing court. These directions must be followed 'explicitly'.
15 The directed judgement of the reviewing court is the law of the case and is 16 controlling on the jurisdiction of the trial court. In this case, the Fourth
17 DCA adopted a written opinion determining the issues on appeal. The court
18 reversed in part, aff'd in part, and remanded with directions, specifically 19 directing the lower court with respect to a particular issue involving 20 possible jury misconduct/bias. Therefore, the trial court has no discretion
21 to interpret the opinion of the Appellate Court, but on the contrary, it 22 is bound to specifically carry out the instructions of the reviewing court, 23 which Judge Donnitz failed to do.

24 Any proceeding had or the judgement rendered contrary to such specific 25 directions would be void. There is no latitude for interpretation of the 26 judgement of the Fourth DCA. Neither is there any necessity for broadening 27 the issues to be acted upon. The judgement of the Fourth DCA was a proper

1 and complete disposition of the issues that were presented by the record,
2 it is clear and positive, and there is no reason to doubt that the court
3 intended to confine further proceedings in the trial court to a determina-4 tion of those issues.

5 This limitation measures the authority of the Superior Court upon
6 controlling on the jurisdiction of the trial court. Judge Domnitz's
7 failure to act in accordance with the directions of the Fourth DCA violated
8 petitioner's due process rights guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment to 9 the United States Constitution. Furthermore, this unlawful act created a 10 miscarriage of justice and requires reversal. If this Court finds that 11 jurors can, indeed, veto a defense request for information, after a 12 reviewing court has found good cause for the disclosure, then remand is 13 still necessary so a proper hearing can be held to determine whether 14 juror objections should be sustained governed by Code of Civil Procedure 15 Section 237 to determine whether the jurors "objection" to the release of 16 juror information is due to an unwillingness to be contacted, or for some 17 other reason that does not override the showing of good cause that the 18 Fourth DCA has already determined exists.

GROUND SIX.

PETITIONER IS IN CUSTODY IN VIOLATION OF THE 6TH AMENDMENT OF THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION, BECAUSE THERE WAS A SENTENCE ERROR BECAUSE OF THE JUDGE'S IMPOSITION OF THE UPPER TERM ON COUNT TWO IN EXCESS OF THE MAXIMUM ALLOWED ON THE BASIS OF FINDINGS MADE BY THE JUDGE RATHER THAN BY THE JURY.

SUPPORTING FACTS

Petitioner was sentenced to the upper term of five years for the principal count, doubled to 10 years pursuant to Penal Code Section 667, subdivisions (b) through (i). One-third the midterm of 1 year, doubled to two years, was imposed for the second count. Finally, a five year enhancement was imposed pursuant to Penal Code Section 667, subdivision (a). Petitioner's aggregate term of imprisonment is 17 years. (D035782 C.T. pp. 152, 200.)

The Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments "require criminal convictions to rest upon a jury determination that the defendant is guilty of every element of the crime with which he is charged, beyond a reasonable doubt." Where proof of a particular fact exposes the defendant to greater punishment than that available in the absence of such proof, that fact is an element of the crime which the Sixth Amendment requires to be proven to a jury beyond a reasonable doubt.

Petitioner contends on appeal that he was deprived of his Sixth Amendment right to a jury trial and Fourteenth Amendment right to due process because the trial court imposed the upper term in count two by relying on aggravating factors found true neither by a jury nor beyond a reasonable doubt.

As the United States Supreme Court has repeatedly made clear, any fact that increases the penalty for a crime beyond the prescribed statutory maximum, other than the fact of a prior conviction, must be submitted to a jury and proved beyond a reasonable doubt.

1 When a judge inflicts punishment that the jury's verdict alone does
2 not allow, the jury has not found all the facts which the law makes esse-
3 ntial to the punishment, and the judge exceeds his proper authority. The 4 Sixth Amendment by its terms is not a limitation on judicial power, but 5 a reservation of jury duty. It limits judicial power only to the extent
6 that the claimed judicial power infringes on the province of the jury.

7 Because the facts supporting petitioner's exceptional sentence were 8 neither admitted by petitioner nor found by a jury, the sentence violated
9 his Sixth Amendment right to trial by jury.

10 ~~Petitioner's imprisonment is illegal and in contravention of rights~~
11 ~~guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment to the United States Constitution and by~~ 12 ~~Article 15 of the California Constitution.~~

13 Petitioner's sentence was enhanced by five years because of the 14 first alleged prior conviction for Unlawful driving or taking of vehicle
15 ~~without the owner's consent for which petitioner served a prior prison~~
16 term. Petitioner admitted the prior on counsel's advice (R.T. p. 1505).

17 Penal Code Section 667.5 provides in pertinent part;

18 [enhancement of prison terms for prior prison terms
19 shall not be imposed where there has been a period
20 of five years in which the defendant has remained 21 free of felony convictions]

22 A cursory review of petitioner's record reveals that the prior felony
23 conviction and prison term were over five years prior to his instant
24 offense and thus cannot be used to enhance under Penal Code Section 667.5.

25 The trial court should have been alert to the inapplicability of the 26 alleged prior under Penal Code Section 667.5, when reading the information 27 in the instant case which states May 8, 1990 as the date of the prior conviction. The nine-year span between the alleged prior and the new offense is an obvious indicator which should have motivated the trial court

1 or even the prosecution to engage in a rudimentary search to check into 2 the applicable five year "wash-out" clause of Penal Code Section 667.5.

3 Petitioner was released from prison in May 1991, and he suffered no
4 subsequent felony convictions from that date until his conviction for 5 the instant case.

6 The sentence of one-third the midterm of 1 year, doubled to two 7 years is double jeopardy in violation of Penal Code Section 654, and the 8 Fifth Amendment of the United States Constitution.

9 Penal Code Section 654(a) states...An act or omission that 10 is punishable in different ways by different provisions of 11 law shall be punished under the provision that provides 12 for the longest potential term of imprisonment, but in no
13 case shall the act or omission be punished under more than 14 one provision. An acquittal or conviction and sentence 15 under any one bars a prosecution for the same act or 16 omission under any other.

17 By permitting sentencing judges to impose sentences based on their 18 determination of facts not found by the jury or admitted by the defendant,
19 or subjecting the defendant to double jeopardy has violated petitioner's
20 Fifth, Sixth and Fourteenth Amendment rights of the United States
21 Constitution. Under these circumstances this sentencing error cannot 22 conceivably be deemed harmless under any standard.

GROUND SEVEN

PETITIONER IS IN CUSTODY IN VIOLATION OF THE 6TH, AND THE 14TH AMENDMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION AND ARTICLE I, SECTION 15 OF THE CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION, BECAUSE DEFENSE COUNSEL'S REPRESENTATION AT TRIAL, SENTENCING AND ON REMAND FELL BELOW AN OBJECTIVE LEVEL OF REASONABLENESS, PREJUDICING PETITIONER AND CREATING A REASONABLE PROBABILITY THE RESULT OF THE TRIAL WOULD HAVE BEEN DIFFERENT HAD COUNSEL ACTED REASONABLY.

SUPPORTING FACTS

Counsel's performance was deficient, falling below an objective standard of reasonableness because defense counsel failed to meaningfully challenge

the State's case at trial. Counsel did not even bother to object to the procedure whereby witnesses Loper, Pomplin, and Anderson were allowed to identify a photo of one single vehicle as opposed to having six different vehicles (six pack) to choose from. Counsel should have pointed this out for the jury to hear. By not objecting to the prosecution allowing these witnesses to view a single vehicle and make an identification of that single vehicle in such a suggestive manner "fell below an objective standard of reasonableness."

Counsel has a responsibility to meaningfully challenge the State's case. The identification of this single vehicle by these witnesses was central to the States case in Counts #1 and #2. The jury utilized this identification evidence to make a crucial determination in finding petitioner guilty in Count #2. This failure by petitioner's counsel remains simply unreasonable, as there was no contemporary evidentiary hearing on the facts surrounding the identification of the vehicle.

The identification of the vehicle in court by these witnesses was unduly suggestive, when equating certainty with reliability "determinations of the reliability suggested by these witnesses' certainty after the use of suggestive procedures are complicated by the possibility that the certainty may reflect the corrupting effect of the suggestive procedures

1 [themselves]."

2 If counsel would have objected to this suggestive procedure then the 3 jury would not have been allowed to hear this crucial identification
4 testimony or the jury would have been told to disregard this identification
5 or the jury could have found this identification evidence not substantiated
6 and decide to find petitioner not guilty in Count #2.

7 Furthermore, counsel failed to put an identification expert on the 8 stand after explaining to the jury during opening arguments that they would 9 hear testimony from one. Based on the problems with identification in this 10 case there is no tactical, or logical explanation for counsel's lack of 11 "Diligence." The jury foreperson mentioned in his letter to the District 12 Attorney that "It was suggested that an expert would testify-that never 13 happened." It is apparent that even the jury was anxiously waiting for 14 counsel to present an expert witness on the stand to help them in their 15 decision making. This was objectively unreasonable and resulted in prejudice 16 to petitioner, since the jury didn't get the opportunity to hear from 17 this very crucial and important witness. In addition, the standard of 18 reasonably competent representation affords a measurable guide for 19 evaluating the quality of trial counsel's decision making.

20 During the sentencing hearing counsel failed in his duties to object
21 to the amount of money petitioner was ordered to pay for restitution.

22 THE COURT: All right. With regard to the restitution, any additional information as to either victims?

23 MS. KATE BUSH: No, your Honor.

24 PROBATION: No, your Honor.

25 THE COURT: Okay. And Mr. Wadler, anything else?

26 MR. Steven Wadler: No, Sir.

27 THE COURT: Any comment on the restitution being requested by the two victims?

MR. Steven Wadler: I am sorry your Honor?

THE COURT: On the issue of restitution, any comment there?

MR. Steven Wadler: No. Submit it.

1 Counsel failed in his duties to mention that petitioner was "indigent"
2 and could not even afford to pay for counsel to represent him during trial.
3 Counsel failed in his duties as an advocate for petitioner to request a 4 hearing regarding petitioner's ability to pay when it imposes a restitution
5 fine. "

6 The statute requiring restitution fine of not less than $200.00 dollars
7 is subject to the defendant's ability to pay. West Ann. Cal. Penal Code
8 Section 1202.4, 1202.4(A), West Ann. Govt. Code §13967(A), Crim. Law
9 §1208.4(2).

10 Under Government Code §27755(B)(2) ability to pay means the overall
11 capability of the person to reimburse the costs or a portion of the costs
12 involved. This section allows the following factors to be used to determine 13 one's ability to pay the person's financial position, the person's future 14 financial position predicted for up to six months in the future the 15 likelihood that the person will be able to obtain employment within the next 16 Six months and any other factor bearing upon the person's ability to pay 17 for the costs involved, Government Code §27755(B)(2)(A)(D).

18 Under Government Code §27755(B)(1)(B), unless there are unusual cir-
19 cumstances a person sentenced to state prison does not have the future
20 financial position which allow an ability to pay within Six months
21 time frame.

22 With the current restitution payment recovery procedure taking a
23 total of 55% of all money deposited into an Inmate's trust account 45%
24 going towards the actual restitution fine and 10% going towards a 25 processing cost at the institution petitioner is housed.

26 The fact that petitioner is indigent he has no likelihood of making 27 payment in accordance with Government Code §27755(B)(2)(A)(d), to the

1 maximum fine which was imposed upon him at the time of sentencing and his 2 counsel failed in his duties to object to the amount of restitution imposed.
3 Had counsel objected to the amount of restitution that was imposed upon 4 petitioner there was a probability that he would have succeeded in requesting 5 a hearing to determine petitioner's ability to pay.

6 While out to court on remand petitioner ran into a prosecution witness
7 by the name of Steven Doepker in the local county jail. Mr. Doepker
8 didn't recognize petitioner at first, but after speaking with petitioner
9 he remembered testifying against him. Doepker apologized for sending him to 10 prison, but he mentioned that he was paid money by Detective Griffin during 11 the whole trial process and even before trial started. This money was for 12 favorable testimony to help the detective get a conviction against 13 petitioner so that he could close the case.

14 Petitioner relayed this shocking and relevant information to his 15 counsel as soon as he was able to get to a phone. If counsel had actually 16 investigated this important information, there is a possibility it would 17 have been enough to undermine the testimony of Mr. Doepker in relation to 18 Count #3. Counsel's performance was deficient, falling below an objective
19 level of reasonableness, prejudicing petitioner and creating a reasonable 20 probability that the result's on remand would have been different since 21 this witness felt bad by perjuring himself on the witness stand to receive 22 the money promised to him by Detective Griffin. This failure to investigate
23 by petitioner's counsel deprived petitioner of his Sixth Amendment right
24 to have counsel make a reasonable investigation into his claims. Counsel's 25 errors prejudiced petitioner, because counsel's errors led to a reasonable 26 probability that the results of the proceedings would have been different had 27 the errors not occurred. Due to these errors reversal is required.

28. Consent to Magistrate Judge Jurisdiction

In order to insure the just, speedy and inexpensive determination of Section 2254 habeas cases filed in this district, the parties may waive their right to proceed before a district judge and consent to magistrate judge jurisdiction. Upon consent of all the parties under 28 U.S.C. § 636(c) to such jurisdiction, the magistrate judge will conduct all proceedings including the entry of final judgment. The parties are free to withhold consent without adverse substantive consequences.

The Court encourages parties to consent to a magistrate judge as it will likely result in an earlier resolution of this matter. If you request that a district judge be designated to decide dispositive matters, a magistrate judge will nevertheless hear and decide all non-dispositive matters and will hear and issue a recommendation to the district judge as to all dispositive matters.

You may consent to have a magistrate judge conduct any and all further proceedings in this case, including the entry of final judgment, by indicating your consent below.

Choose only one of the following:

☒ Plaintiff consents to magistrate judge jurisdiction as set forth above.

OR

☐ Plaintiff requests that a district judge be designated to decide dispositive matters and trial in this case.

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF SAN DIEGO

IN RE THE PETITION OF:

KEVIN GUNN,

Petitioner.

) SCD 144476

) ORDER DENYING MOTION
) TO REDUCE RESTITUTION

THIS COURT, HAVING READ AND CONSIDERED THE FORM MOTION TO REDUCE RESTITUTION, AND THE FILE IN THE ABOVE CAPTIONED MATTER, FINDS:

On May 26, 2000 the Court sentenced Petitioner to the total term of 17 years for two counts of robbery (Penal Code § 211) and pursuant to Penal Code § 667(b)-(i). The Court also ordered Petitioner to pay a restitution fine of $5,000 (Penal Code § 1202.4(b)), payable forthwith (Penal Code § 2085.5), with an additional restitution fine of $5,000, suspended unless parole is revoked (Penal Code § 1202.45), plus restitution to the victim in the total amount of $2,328.00.
Petitioner timely appealed, but on January 8, 2002, the Fourth District Court of Appeal affirmed in part and reversed in a part that has nothing to do with restitution. In fact, Petitioner never mentions restitution in that appeal.

Now, five years later, Petitioner brings for the first time the present form motion that contains nothing factually specific to his case, but asks for a waiver/reduction of the above-

1 referenced restitution order because he claims that he is indigent without the ability to pay.

2 There are several reasons why this request is denied:

3 1. Pursuant to Penal Code § 1202.4(b), the imposition of the restitution fine was 4 mandatory when Petitioner was sentenced and there is no law that allows for it to be waived.

5 2. Because this is a motion to modify the sentence, the Superior Court has no jurisdiction
6 to modify sentence after 120 days have passed from the date of that judgment.

7 3. Petitioner has failed to meet the burden of proving he was unaware of his obligation to 8 pay these amounts at the time of sentencing in this case.

9 First, at the time Petitioner was sentenced and the restitution fine was imposed, Penal 10 Code § 1202.4(c) provided in pertinent part as follows: "The court shall impose the restitution 11 fine unless it finds compelling and extraordinary reasons for not doing so, and states those 12 reasons on the record. A defendant's inability to pay shall not be considered a compelling and 13 extraordinary reason not to impose a restitution fine. . . ." Subsection (d) adds that when the 14 courts sets the fine in excess of the $200 minimum, it shall consider the inability to pay, but also 15 "the seriousness and gravity of the offense and the circumstances of its commission, any 16 economic gain derived by the defendant as a result of the crime, the extent to which any other 17 person suffered any losses as a result of the crime, and the number of victims"

18 In the present case, Petitioner was convicted of two serious/violent felonies, so it can be 19 assumed the sentencing Court took these facts into consideration when the order was made.

20 Second, Pursuant to Penal Code § 1170(d) the court lacks jurisdiction to rule on 21 Petitioner's motion because more than 120 days have passed between the date sentence was 22 imposed in 2000, and the date of filing the present request.

23 Third, the California Supreme Court stated in People v. Scott (1994) 9 Cal.4th 331, 350-
24 351, "The parties have ample opportunity to influence the court's sentencing choices under the 25 determinate scheme. As a practical matter, both sides often know before the hearing what 26 sentence is likely to be imposed and the reasons therefor. Such information is contained in the 27 probation report, which is required in every felony case and generally provided to the court and 28 parties before sentencing. (§ 1191, 1203, subds. (b) & (g), 1203c, 1203d, 1203.10; rules 411, 29 411.5(a)(8), (9); People v. Edwards (1976) 18 Cal.3d 796, 801 & fn. 8.) In anticipation of the 30 hearing, the defense may file, among other things, a statement in mitigation urging specific sentencing choices and challenging the information and recommendations contained in the

1 probation report. (§ 1170, subd. (b); rule 437.) Relevant argument and evidence also may be
 2 presented at sentencing. (§ 1204; rule 433.)."

3 On page 10 of the Probation Report prepared for use at the initial sentencing hearing, it
 4 clearly states that the Probation Officer recommended that Petitioner pay the exact amount
 5 ordered: $5,000 for the restitution fine and a total of $2,328 in restitution to the victim. It can be 6 assumed that Petitioner saw this recommendation and was aware of it prior to the actual 7 imposition. Petitioner has been present at all hearings, but no claim of this alleged inability to 8 pay has even been mentioned in the past. Since Petitioner chose not to contest the matter at 9 sentencing or on appeal, he has waived any right to challenge the order for lack of specificity.
 10 People v. Blankenship (1989) 213 Cal.App.3d 992, 998. The Petitioner was represented by 11 counsel at the time of sentencing and failed to show that he was not aware of the restitution fine 12 and restitution to the victim amounts, so the issue has been waived because it was not raised at 13 the sentencing.

14 Therefore, for the reasons stated, Petitioner's motion to modify the sentence is DENIED.
 15 It is further ordered that a copy of this order be served upon Petitioner.

16 IT IS SO ORDERED.

) OF HABEAS CORPUS

AFTER REVIEWING THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS AND THE COURT FILE IN THE ABOVE REFERENCED MATTER, THE COURT FINDS AS FOLLOWS:

On May 26, 2000, the Court sentenced Petitioner to a total term of 17 years for two counts of robbery (Penal Code section 211) and pursuant to Penal Code section 667(b)-(i). The Court also ordered Petitioner to pay a restitution fine of $5,000 (Penal Code section 1202.4(b).), payable forthwith (Penal Code section 1202.45), plus restitution to the victim in the total amount of $2,328.00. Petitioner timely appealed on the grounds that (1) there was insufficient evidence

1 to support the judgment and (2) the trial court erred by (a) excluding evidence of third party
2 culpability, (b) denying his motion for disclosure of juror identifying information, and (c)
3 denying his motion for new trial. On January 8, 2002, the Fourth District Court of Appeal
4 affirmed in part and reversed in part. (Case No. D035782) The court reversed the trial court's 5 denial of Petitioner's motion for disclosure of juror identifying information and motion for new 6 trial and affirmed the judgment in all other respects. (Ibid.)

7 After remand, Petitioner appealed again on the grounds that (1) the trial court erred by 8 sustaining five jurors' objections to his petition without a showing they were unwilling to be 9 contacted; and (2) section 237(d) is unconstitutional as applied by the trial court. On August 17, 10 2004, the Fourth District Court of Appeal affirmed the trial court in all respects. (Case No.
11 D041821)

12 On October 11, 2005, Petitioner filed a Motion for Reduction of Restitution/Fines for 13 Lack of Ability to Pay. In an Order filed October 25, 2005, the Court denied Petitioner's motion 14 in its entirety.

15 Petitioner filed the instant Petition For Writ Of Habeas Corpus on November 4, 2005.
16 Petitioner seeks to set aside his conviction on the following grounds: (1) ineffective assistance of 17 counsel, (2) newly discovered evidence, (3) imposition of an upper-term sentence was improper, 18 and (4) Petitioner's counsel failed to object to the amount of restitution.

19 Every petitioner, even one filing in pro per, must set forth a prima facie statement of facts
20 which would entitle him to habeas corpus relief under existing law. (In re Bower (1985) 38
21 Cal.3d 865, 872; In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal.3d 870, 875 fn 4.) Vague or conclusory
22 allegations do not warrant habeas relief. (People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal.4th 464, 474.) The 23 petitioner then bears the burden of proving the facts upon which he bases his claim for relief. (In 24 re Riddle (1962) 57 Cal.2d 848, 852.) The petition should include copies of "reasonably
25 available documentary evidence in support of claims, including pertinent portions of trial

1 transcripts and affidavits or declarations." (People v. Duvall, supra 9 Cal.4th 474) As set forth
2 below, Petitioner has failed to meet this burden.

3 INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE OF COUNSEL.

4 Petitioner contends his court appointed counsel, Steven Wadler, failed to provide 5 Petitioner with effective assistance of counsel under the law. Petitioner states Mr. Wadler failed
6 to (1) object to the photo line-up identification of certain witnesses, (2) file a motion to suppress 7 certain evidence, (3) have an identification expert testify, (4) obtain an affidavit from a
8 prosecution witness who was allegedly paid by the People to testify against Petitioner, and (5)
9 investigate and research the facts of the case. Petitioner contends Mr. Wadler's conduct violated
10 his rights to due process. Petitioner claims that if Mr. Wadler had performed effectively the jury 11 would not have heard the unduly prejudicial identification information and his defense would not 12 have otherwise been undermined to Petitioner's detriment.

13 Denial of the right to effective assistance of counsel, is one error which is cognizable on 14 collateral review whether or not it was raised on appeal. (People v. Jackson (1973) 10 Cal.3d 15 265, 268, citing In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal.3d 870, 875.)

16 In order for a convicted defendant to establish that counsel's assistance was so defective
17 as to require reversal of a conviction, the defendant must show: (1) that counsel committed error
18 so serious that his attorney was not functioning as the "counsel" guaranteed by the Sixth 19 Amendment, and (2) that the deficient performance prejudiced the defense. (Strickland v.
20 Washington (1984) 466 U.S. 668, 687; People v. Ledesma (1987) 43 Cal.3d 171, 216.)

21 A reviewing court must apply the first of these prongs "deferentially" since there is a 22 strong presumption that counsel's conduct falls within the "wide range of reasonable professional 23 assistance," (Strickland, supra, 466 U.S. at p. 689; Ledesma, supra, 43 Cal.3d at p. 216). The 24 second prong of prejudice must be "affirmatively proved." (Ledesma, supra, 43 Cal.3d at p. 217.)
25 To prove prejudice, defendants must establish the "reasonable probability that but for counsel's

1 unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would be different. A reasonable probability
2 is a probability sufficient to undermine confidence in the outcome." (Strickland, supra, 466 U.S.
3 at p. 694.)

4 Other than Petitioner's conclusory statements and allegations he has submitted no
5 admissible evidence to support his claim that Mr. Wadler committed error so serious that he 6 failed to function as the "counsel" guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment. (Strickland, supra, 7 Ledesma, supra) In addition, Petitioner failed to submit any affirmative admissible evidence that 8 Mr. Wadler's alleged deficient performance prejudiced Petitioner's defense. (Ibid.) Thus, there
9 is no evidence before the Court that would establish a reasonable probability that but for Mr.
10 Wadler's conduct the result of Petitioner's trial would be different.

11 NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE.

12 Petitioner asserts while his case was on remand, he met prosecution witness, "Doepker," 13 who allegedly told Petitioner that Detective Griffin paid Doepker to testify against Petitioner.
14 Petitioner seems to argue prosecutorial misconduct in this regard, but also blames his attorney
15 for not discovering this information and/or failing to move to suppress Doepker's testimony. Yet, 16 the Petition admits that during Petitioner's preliminary hearing Doepker "willingly admitted to 17 receiving [money] from the same detective and a D.A. Investigator." (Petitioner p. 7 of 13)
18 Further, the Petition admits that "during trial, [his] counsel failed to bring this important fact to 19 the attention of the jury." (Ibid.)

20 The evidence described by Petitioner does not constitute newly discovered evidence and 21 the Court elects not to address the issue. (See: In re Miller (1941) 17 Cal.2d 734) Further, the 22 general rule is that habeas corpus cannot serve as a substitute for an appeal, and that matters that 23 "could have been, but were not, raised on a timely appeal from a judgment of conviction" are not 24 cognizable on habeas corpus in the absence of special circumstances warranting departure from 25 that rule. (In re Clark (1993) 5 Cal.4th 750, 765 [quoting In re Dixon (1953) 41 Cal.2d 756, 759;

1 In re Walker (1974) 10 Cal.3d 764, 773.) Petitioner has failed to set forth any argument or 2 evidence of special circumstances that warrants this Court's review in this regard.

3 IMPOSITION OF AN UPPER-TERM AND AMOUNT OF RESTITUTION.

4 Finally, the Petitioner challenges the sentence he received more than five years ago on 5 May 26, 2000. He contends the judge improperly imposed the upper-term and required Petitioner
6 to pay restitution despite the fact that Petitioner is indigent.

7 On October 25, 2005, the Court issued an order denying Petitioner's motion to reduce the 8 restitution he was ordered to pay. That motion essentially challenged the sentence imposed in 9 May, 2000. Since the amount of restitution and the imposition of the upper-term are sentencing
10 issues, the Court's reasoning in its October 25, 2005, order applies to Petitioner's instant request.
11 As such, the Court deems Petitioner's request here as a motion for reconsideration. New 12 applications based on the same grounds will be denied unless there has been a change in the 13 existing facts or the law. (In re Lynch (1972) 8 Cal.3d 410, 439 fn. 26; In re Miller (1941) 17 14 Cal.2d 734.) Petitioner has stated neither new facts nor new law justifying reconsideration of the 15 sentencing issues raised here. As Petitioner was informed previously, the Court has no
16 jurisdiction to modify a sentence after 120 days have passed from the date of that Judgment.

17 (Penal Code section 1170(d); See People v. Scott (1994) 9 Cal.4th 331, 350-351.) Since 18 Petitioner elected not to contest the matter at sentencing or an appeal, he has waived any right to 19 challenge his sentence at this time. (People v. Blankenship (1989) 213 Cal.App.3d 992, 998)

20 The petition is denied. A copy of this Order shall be served upon Petitioner and the 21 Office of the San Diego County District Attorney, Appellate Division.

22 IT IS SO ORDERED:

RE: In re KEVIN GUNN on Habeas Corpus
D047765
San Diego County No. SCD144476

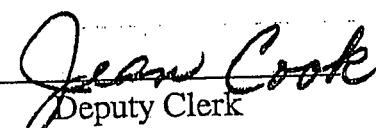

Dear Petitioner:

Your petition for writ of habeas corpus has been received and filed on December 30, 2005, and assigned case number D047765. It is currently pending before the court. You will be notified of the court's decision once it has been rendered.

Please notify the court should you have a change of address.

COURT OF APPEAL - FOURTH APPELLATE DISTRICT

STATE OF CALIFORNIA

In re KEVIN GUNN

on

Habeas Corpus.

D047765

(San Diego County
Super. Ct. No. SCD 144476)

THE COURT:

The petition for writ of habeas corpus has been read and considered by Presiding Justice McConnell and Associate Justices Aaron and Irion.

A jury convicted petitioner of two counts of robbery. The court found he had a prior strike, sentenced him to a 17-year term and ordered him to pay a $5,000.00 restitution fine and $2,328.00 in restitution. He appealed, contending there was insufficient evidence to support the conviction, and the court erred in excluding evidence of third party culpability, in denying a motion to disclose juror identifying information, and in denying a motion for new trial. This court reversed the order denying disclosure of juror information and affirmed the judgment in all other respects. After remand petitioner again appealed, claiming the court erred in sustaining five jurors' objections to disclosing information and that Penal Code section 237, subdivision (d) was unconstitutional as applied. This court affirmed the order. Subsequently, the superior court denied petitioner's motion to reduce the restitution fine.

Petitioner contends he received ineffective assistance of counsel because his counsel did not object to suggestive vehicle identification; did not move to suppress the vehicle identification or present expert identification testimony; did not investigate petitioner's claim that a prosecution witness offered perjured testimony; did not adequately investigate his case; and did not object to the amount of the restitution fine.

For a petitioner to prevail on a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel he or she must establish that counsel "failed to act in a manner to be expected of reasonably competent attorneys acting as diligent advocates." (People v. Pope (1979) 23 Cal.3d 412, 425.) In addition, he must show he was prejudiced by counsel's deficient performance. (Strickland v. Washington (1984) 466 U.S. 668, 687; People v. Ledesma (1987) 43 Cal.3d 171, 216.) Petitioner has not shown that his trial counsel provided ineffective assistance, but has made only unsupported allegations that his counsel was inadequate. Also, he has not shown that any of the alleged errors were prejudicial to his defense.

Petitioner also claims he has newly discovered evidence that a witness was paid to testify against him at trial. However, petitioner also states that during his preliminary hearing that same witness admitted receiving money from a detective and a district attorney investigator. Thus, the information petitioner now presents does not constitute new evidence and the issue could have been raised in his direct appeal. Habeas corpus does not serve as a substitute for appeal. Absent special circumstances that excuse a failure to raise the issue on appeal, such failure generally precludes review in a post-conviction petition for writ of habeas corpus. (In re Harris, (1993) 5 Cal.4th, 813, 829.) Petitioner also challenges his sentence and restitution fine. These arguments also could have been raised on appeal. He has not shown special circumstances excusing his failure to raise these issues in his appeal.

The petition is denied.

IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF:)

KEVIN GUNN,

Petitioner.)

HC 18350
SCD 144476

OF HABEAS CORPUS

AFTER REVIEWING THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS AND THE COURT FILE IN THE ABOVE REFERENCED MATTER, THE COURT FINDS AS FOLLOWS:

On September 17, 1999, a jury convicted petitioner of two counts of Robbery (Pen. Code § 211). One of the counts carried an enhancement pursuant to Penal Code section 667. The court sentenced petitioner to 17 years. Defendant filed a timely notice of appeal. In the appeal, petitioner raised issues of (1) insufficient evidence to support the judgment, (2) trial court error by (a) excluding evidence of third party culpability, (b) denying a motion for disclosure of juror identifying information, and (c) denying his motion for a new trial. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, but then remanded reversing the orders denying the motion for disclosure of juror information and new trial.

On September 13, 2002, the court granted the motion to release juror information as to seven of the twelve jurors. The remaining jurors objected to the release of their information, and

1 the court acceded to those objections. Petitioner then appealed the court's decision denying the 2 motion to release juror information as to the five jurors who objected to that release. On August
3 17, 2004, the court issued its remittitur. The court affirmed the trial court's order.

4 Petitioner filed his first petition for writ of habeas corpus with this court on November 4,
5 2005. There he alleged ineffective assistance of counsel, newly discovered evidence, paying a
6 witness to testify, sentencing error, and amount of restitution. That petition was denied November 7 23, 2005.

8 Petitioner now claims there was insufficient evidence because there was no credible
9 evidence to prove he committed the crimes he was convicted of. Petitioner contends the trial
10 court error in excluding testimony regarding potential third party culpability. Petitioner contends 11 there was law enforcement misconduct, perjury, and police bias. Also the trial court erred in 12 refusing the request for juror information. Petitioner contends the trial court abused its discretion 13 by disregarding the 4th District Court of Appeal. Petitioner contends the trial court erred by 14 improperly instructing the jury.

15 In general, habeas corpus cannot serve as a second appeal, and matters that were raised
16 and rejected on appeal are not cognizable on state habeas corpus in the absence of special 17 circumstances. (In re Huffman (1986) 42 Cal.3d 552, 554-55; In re Terry (1971) 4 Cal.3d 911, 18 927.) The same rule applies to petitioners filing writs of habeas corpus in federal court pursuant 19 to 28 U.S.C. §§ 2254 and 2255. (See United States v. Frady (1982) 456 U.S. 152, 164-65 [71
20 L.Ed.2d 816, 828] ("[W]e have long and consistently held that a collateral challenge may not do 21 service for an appeal." [citations omitted]).)

22 Additionally, The general rule is that habeas corpus cannot serve as a substitute for an 23 appeal, and that matters that "could have been, but were not, raised on a timely appeal from a 24 judgment of conviction" are not cognizable on habeas corpus in the absence of special 25 circumstances warranting departure from that rule. (In re Clark (1993) 5 Cal.4th 750, 765
26 [quoting In re Dixon (1953) 41 Cal.2d 756, 759; In re Walker (1974) 10 Cal.3d 764, 773.]

27 Here, petitioner has two appeals, a previous habeas petition in this court, and a previous 28 habeas petition in the court of appeal. Petitioner has had opportunities to raise these issues.

1 There are no unusual circumstances to justify this court reviewing these issues.

2 The petition is therefore denied.

3 A copy of this Order shall be served upon Petitioner and the San Diego Office of the 4 District Attorney.

5 IT IS SO ORDERED.

ordered to be served consecutively for Count Three. Finally, a five-year enhancement was imposed pursuant to Penal Code section 667, subdivision (a). Appellant's aggregate term of imprisonment is 17 years. (C.T. pp. 152, 200.)

Appellant timely filed a notice of appeal on June 7, 2000. (C.T. p. 154.)

STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. Introduction

Appellant was arrested for a series of street robberies that had been committed over several months in 1998 and 1999 in the Normal Heights, North Park, University Heights, and Kensington areas of San Diego. The robberies were committed primarily against elderly people, and generated attention from local politicians and law enforcement, who made solving the crimes a priority. (4A R.T. pp. 580-582; see also, Officials Target Crimes Against Elderly, S.D. Union (Feb. 28, 1999) p. B-2.)

Based on statements by eyewitnesses, police were looking for an African-American male, 6 feet to 6 feet, 3 inches tall, heavy set, with "very dark shiny skin."¹ The crimes were unusual for the callous and bold way in which they were committed, where the attacker would strike an individual from behind in broad daylight and in front of numerous witnesses, then casually walk away from the scene. At least two additional suspects were arrested for the crimes, but then released when the same type of robberies continued. (1 R.T. pp. 23, 33.) Many other suspects were investigated. (1 R.T. p. 33.)

The evidence at trial established Mr. Gunn stands unusually tall at 6 feet, 9 inches, and that he is an African-American with very light-colored skin. Most of the witnesses who testified were shown People's Exhibit 10, a photographic lineup of six individuals, in which it was stipulated that appellant occupied the number three spot. (4 R.T. p. 394.) A review of the exhibits in this case will reveal that Mr. Gunn is an extremely distinctive-looking individual, yet, as will be seen below, very few witnesses selected his photograph out of the lineup, and nobody positively identified him in the lineup. Not a single eyewitness offered police a physical description that accurately reflected Mr. Gunn's appearance and stature.

Appellant's primary contention in this case is that the circumstantial evidence presented is not sufficient to sustain his conviction given the extensive eyewitness evidence that a different individual committed the crimes. Because the evidence presented is crucial to a resolution of this issue, the facts are described here in detail.

ARGUMENT

I

THE EVIDENCE IS NOT SUFFICIENT TO SUPPORT APPELLANT'S CONVICTION

A. Introduction

Although almost a dozen eyewitnesses testified to having seen the perpetrator of the robberies, not a single individual made a positive identification of appellant when looking at the photographic lineup. Not one person gave an accurate physical description, although many of the descriptions were very similar to the other eyewitnesses. As seen below, none of the descriptions offered by witnesses are consistent with Mr. Gunn's physical appearance. Moreover, someone other than appellant was selected seven times in the photographic lineup, and three witnesses did not identify anyone. Only three of the 11 witnesses tentatively identified appellant.

The following chart breaks down the description offered to police by eyewitnesses, and the results of those witnesses looking at Exhibit 10, the photographic lineup³:

³ Steve Doecker, who testified regarding Count Three, is not included in the chart. He is the only person who positively identified appellant from the photographic lineup, but he also testified he knew appellant through living in the same neighborhood. Also, he did not witness the robbery, and only testified to seeing appellant in the area of the Quick Mart, where the evidence showed appellant was during the time of the robbery.

|--------------|-----------------------------|--------|--------------------------|-------------------------------|---|
| Kamien V1 | N/a | N/a | N/a | N/a | N/a |
| Brennan | 6'1" | medium | | | Wrong (2x) |
| Schroeder | 5'10" to 6' | | | "Bad haircut; "Kinky hair" | Wrong (2x) |
| Burkholder | 6' or slightly taller | | | Short | Nobody & excluded D |
| Loper | 6' to 6'3" | | Very dark, shiny skin | | Excluded D & picked wrong guy |
| Pomplin V2 | Tall | Thin | Dark skin | "like Bozo" | Wrong guy |
| Andaya | 6' or taller | 250+ | Dark skin | Clean cut | Nobody |
| Anderson | 6'1" | 200+ | | | Nobody |
| Fortunato V3 | 6' + | | | | Picked D & 1 other; other more likely |
| Stowell | 6'4" | Thin | | | Tentative ID |
| Halloran | 6'3" | Thin | | | Tentative ID |

As discussed below, the identifications of appellant by these witnesses do not constitute substantial evidence, and when combined with the witnesses who actually excluded appellant as a suspect, the probability increases that Mr. Gunn was not the person who committed the robberies.

B. Standard Of Review

The appellate court reviews the record in the light most favorable to the judgment, drawing all inferences and presuming every fact in support of the judgment that a trier of fact could reasonably deduce or draw from the evidence. (People v. Miranda (1987) 44 Cal.3d 57, 87.) "The court does not, however, limit its review to the evidence favorable to the respondent." (People v. Johnson (1980) 26 Cal.3d 557, 577.)

Gunn, convicted of a series of robberies may get new trial

JOHN E. WARREN
Publisher

Kevin Gunn, 38, convicted of beating and robbing four people early last year in the mid-city area, was scheduled to be sentenced last week, but his lawyer petitioned the court for a new trial.

The reason cited could be as serious as the Rampart's investigations into the conduct of certain Los Angeles police officers, a number of whom have now been arrested.

The motion for a new trial for Gunn was made on the grounds that the verdict was contrary to law and evidence. 1) The jury was not impartial and relied upon evidence not presented at the trial; and 2) numerous incidents of law enforcement misconduct and perjury, rendering the trial fundamentally unfair, in violation of Gunn's constitutional rights to a fair trial.

In the documents presented to the court, Gunn says "that such procedures amounts to a denial of due process of law." Support for Gunn's motion for a new trial is found in part in a September 19, 1999 letter from Robert J. Morse, the jury foreman in this case, to District Attorney Paul Pfeinst. In the letter Morse stated, "I am writing this letter to raise some issues in regard to the District Attorney's Office during the trial of People vs Gunn." Morse went on to make the following observations:

- Lack of time or overwork can not be allowed as an excuse for sloppy prosecution.
- There was no framework on which to bring the scattered bits of evidence;

- Much of the identification depended on perceptions of height. It was suggested (by the D.A.) that an expert would testify. It never happened;

(73)

This statement by the jury foreman appears to fly in the face of California Civil Procedure Code, Sec 232 (b), which requires every juror in California to take an oath to "render true verdict according only to evidence presented and the instructions of the court."

Evidence in this case showed Gunn in a store at the time of the robbery and not at the scene of the robbery.

The descriptions of the witnesses could possibly describe a half dozen Black men, since Black people tend to be identified as all looking alike.

The witness describe the robber as an African-American man between 5'10 and 6'3 in height and that he weighed between 170 and 200 lbs.

Some say the robber has a thin build. Another says he had a very dark complexion with dark shiny skin. Gunn, is 6'9, weighs 320 lbs. plus, and has a very light complexion.

All of the wanted posters and Crime Stoppers video showed the robber to be 6'0 to 6'3, 220 lbs, heavy set and with very dark shiny skin.

Between February 24, 1999 to April 6, 1999, three more robberies occurred. In each of the descriptions given, the robber was described as a Black male, 40 to 45 years-old, about 6'3 with a thin build, and a very dark complexion.

Gunn had been stopped as he was returning from paying a utility bill a few blocks away. He was released, but was arrested a couple of weeks later.

City Councilwoman Christine Kehoe held a news conference in which she awarded the police commendations for the arrest of Kevin O. Gunn. The citizens in attendance questioned the arrest, because Gunn did not fit the composite drawing the police issued to the public and the broadcast on television.

One witness, whose a dark skin Black man in a police lineup.

Local transient and known alcoholic Steve Doecker testified on April 6, 1999, that he did not see anyone fleeing the robbery scene, nor did he notice anyone running or was out of breath, or in physical distress as if anyone had robbed a store or assaulted someone. But he later testified that he saw Gunn leave the scene

The defense later learned that the transient had been paid $300 for his testimony. He (Steve Doecker) admitted that he drinks liquor regularly, and that he was intoxicated the day of the robbery. He even showed up in court drunk. The day he testified while so intoxicated, he was given $20 to clean himself up.

The San Diego Voice & Viewpoint looked at the wanted poster and it describes the suspect as a B/M/A. (Black Male Adult), 6'0 to 6'3 and 220 lbs, heavy set with big bones, and underlined is Very dark shiny skin.

- The witnesses were never asked if their description could extend to someone the size of the defendant;

- The street map, the people's exhibit, left out many of the alley's that were referred to by witnesses;

- A witness identifying a tear in a shirt must have caught the prosecutor by surprise, as there was no testimony as to when or if he had seen the shirt up close before that time.

But the most telling reason for a new trial could be found in the last two sentences of Morse's letter - "Based on the prosecutor's performance, had the jury been less proactive or less intelligent, there would not have been a conviction."

"Neither overwork nor public service is an excuse for substandard performance."

Mr. Gunn should have a new trial

The case of Kevin O. Gunn raises enough questions for both the courts and the public to have concern over how the entire matter has been handled. While Mr. Gunn is large in stature and might be intimidating to some, it does not follow that he has to be a large Black man who robbed the senior citizens who have been victimized by these crimes. Time after time witnesses described the person who committed these crimes as a "large, dark skin man." Mr. Gunn is not able to change his skin complexion at will.

In addition to this fact, additional robberies occurred after Mr. Gunn's arrest. These were down played by police and prosecutors. The additional issues raised in our story on this case certainly make the case for a new trial.

The San Diego Voice and Viewpoint has an excellent opportunity to serve justice by calling for a new trial rather than continue with the sentencing of a man whose only real crime at this point is being Black in a case involving little old White senior citizens.

The public should be just as concerned because to sentence the wrong man in a case where evidence has either been "worked" or omitted to get a conviction, does a disservice to all of us and leaves a dangerous person on our streets.

CITY LIGHTS

Justice for the Giant

By Ernie Grimm

In early 1999, over a dozen similar assault-and-robbery crimes took place against elderly pedestrians in the Mid-City area. In all of them, the victims were knocked over from behind, held face down, and robbed. Many of the assaults were in broad daylight in front of bystanders. All of the witnesses' accounts said the perpetrator was a black man, but more specific descriptions of his appearance varied. He was described as anywhere from 5'10" to 6'4", 200 to 230 pounds, thin to large. Some witnesses said he was medium-complexioned, others said very dark.

San Diego Police arrested a man in February of 1999 in connection with the crimes, but prosecutors released him when the crimes continued, and they realized they had the wrong man. In April of that year, police arrested Kevin Orlando Gunn, a then-37-year-old ex-convict and Mid-City resident, and charged him with committing three of the robberies. Gunn, a light-complexioned African-American who stands 6'9" and weighs over 300 pounds, had a criminal history of assault and robbery, most notably a 1985 attempted robbery near an automatic teller machine. The victim turned out to be an off-duty Carlsbad police officer, Jimmy Byler. In response, Byler shot Gunn in the calf and back. Gunn pleaded guilty to that crime, which was similar in method to the Mid-City robberies of 1999 he was charged with.

Gunn pleaded not guilty to those charges. In trial, his attorney, Steven Wadler, stressed the 5-inch to 11-inch gap between Gunn and the tallest height given by witnesses, the 70-pound weight difference, and the shade in skin complexion. He also pointed out that no witnesses had picked Gunn

Justin Bonick

Dear Judge Enright,

This letter is in regards to my trial. There were two factors to the suspect's height, and the other was the complexion of the suspect. The witness described the suspect as a dark complexioned black male. I picked a dark complexioned black male in the police photo line-up. I know that, Mr. Loper (witness) gave the police a description of a suspect for the police to make a composite drawing. When shown a photo of a suspect, Mr. Loper picked a dark complexioned black male and not a 1-10 he is a 5, according to Detective Moore's testimony he is the same size as being the suspect. But, Mr. Loper has the tendency to cry and say under oath, that I was the suspect. I would have gotten and was admitted under oath, that the vehicle used in the people's case was the same as it, as did the car, that he saw that day. He also said that he recognizes my pendant jacket, because of the tear in the preliminary hearing where asked did the pendant jacket have a tear in it he replied "no it did not".

IF YOUR HONOR, WOULD BE IN A POSITION TO ADVISE THE JURY THAT FROM THE WILL, THAT THERE IS NO TEAR OR HOLE WHATSOEVER IN THE PENDANT JACKET.

out of photo lineups and that one man had excluded Gunn at the scene of one crime. Prosecutor Kate Bush countered that all of the witnesses had described Gunn as tall and that people don't think in terms of 6'9". She put witnesses on the stand who made courtroom identifications of Gunn as the perpetrator.

Despite the discrepancy between eye-witness descriptions and Gunn's size and skin color, he was found guilty on two of three counts by a jury September 17, 1999. When the verdict was read, Wadler told Judge Kevin Enright that the jury erred when it found his client guilty. "The jury ignored the presumption of innocence," he said. "The jury did not act intelligently or justly."

Support for Wadler's claim came the very next day in the form of a letter jury foreman Robert Morse sent to District Attorney Paul Pfingst. "To begin with," Morse wrote, "after the prosecutions [sic] opening statement, I barely had an idea of what she intended to prove. There was no framework on which to hang the scattered bits of evidence. I was not alone in this perception."

Morse went on to characterize the prosecution as "sloppy," to criticize prosecutor Kate Bush's use of a self-professed clairvoyant as a witness, and to criticize her for not using an expert to support her claim about the way people perceive height. He concluded the letter by stating, "Based on the prosecution's case, I believe actor's performance had the jury been less proactive or less intelligent, there would not have been a conviction, and a dangerous criminal would be back on the streets."

Justin Brooks directs the Innocence Project, a student-staffed workshop at California Western School of Law that reviews criminal convictions and works on behalf of inmates convicted unjustly or under questionable circumstances. He says a letter such as Morse's is not that unusual. "I've seen quite a few jurors come forward," Brooks says, "and say the proceedings were inappropriate. But you can't get a case reversed due to the fact that a juror had buyer's remorse. A juror coming forward and saying, 'I shouldn't have gone along with everybody else, that's not really grounds for a reversal. For a lot of them, it's hard to live with the fact that they put someone in prison possibly for the rest of their life."

Yet Brooks says Morse's letter has a twist to it that Justice

may point to jury misconduct. "The word 'proactive' is very dangerous," he explains. "Being proactive is not the role of the juror. The role of the juror is to be reactive to the evidence. They're supposed to consider what is put in front of them and nothing else and make their decision based on that. What [Morse] is saying is the prosecutor didn't prove the case, but we went ahead and convicted anyway."

The district attorney's office turned the letter over to Judge Kevin Enright and to Wadler who on May 17, 2000, filed a motion for a new trial with the judge. In his motion, he summarized the evidence that had been offered at trial. Wadler pointed out that one pivotal witness, Duane Loper, identified Gunn "in court at the preliminary hearing and at the trial" after having "excluded him in a photo lineup." And Loper's identification of Gunn in the courtroom was, Wadler said, "despite providing descriptive information dramatically different than the actual appearance of Mr. Gunn."

Wadler pointed out that one police officer, Detective Pete Griffin, denied knowing that Loper had been shown a photo lineup; then another officer stated that he had shown Loper the lineup and reported the results to Griffin.

The jury hung, 10-2 for guilt, on that count. Regarding the other two counts, Wadler, in the motion for a new trial, noted that one victim/witness — the clairvoyant — who identified Gunn during the trial, had excluded him in a photo lineup and at the preliminary hearing. He also indicated that another victim/witness had identified Gunn at the preliminary hearing and trial after having been unable to identify him in a photo lineup. He mentioned two other witnesses who could not identify Gunn in photo lineups, the preliminary hearing, or the trial. And Wadler cited convenience-store surveillance-camera footage, which put Gunn in the store at the time of one of the crimes. Wadler closed his written motion with a reference to Morse's letter. "The jury chose to ignore these realities and convict an innocent man as a favor to Paul Pfingst, who should be grateful for their 'proactive' (prosecution/law enforcement?) stance."

On May 26, 2000, Judge Enright denied Gunn's motion for a new trial and sentenced him to 17 years in prison. A brief was filed by Gunn's appellate attorney, Nancy King, in late April of this year. "The main issue," King says, "is that we just don't think the evidence was sufficient."

Arguing insufficient evidence is a tack usually not taken by appellate attorneys because in appeals, King explains, "The presumption switches. In a trial, the presumption is that he's innocent and the prosecution has to prove him guilty. In appeals court, there's a very strong presumption of guilt because a jury found him guilty."

For that reason, appeals briefs usually try to point out some error in process during the trial that may have affected the outcome. "A common example," King says, "is judge's instructions: instructions that weren't properly given, instructions that should have been given but weren't, or instructions that should not have been given and were."

But in this case, King believes a strong insufficiency argument can be made. "First," she explains, "there is some circumstantial evidence which really influenced the jury. But I think it's pretty easily explained by the fact that he lives in the area where the last robbery occurred. The fact that he was in the area when it happened is not all that meaningful. And it's really striking how huge this man is. I mean, he is just a giant. And nobody, not a single witness described him that way. I don't think anybody who looked at Kevin Gunn would say, 'He was tall.' But that's what witnesses described, a tall African-American. Several people described him as 'over six feet, 6'4" was the highest. Mr. Gunn is 6'9". For an African-American, he's way on the light side of the complexion scale. Yet the suspect was described from very dark-skinned to medium complexion. Nobody described him as very light-skinned. And he's very distinctive and looking; he's heavyset and has a distinctive face. Yet not a single person positively identified him from photographs."

The letter from Morse to Pfingst is being addressed in King's appeal as well. "It sounds to me," King says of the letter, "like the jury foreman was saying, 'Gee, the evidence in this case just stunk, and it's a good thing we were here to cover for you.'"

The three-judge panel at the Fourth District Court of Appeals could take one of three courses of action regarding the Gunn case: uphold the original verdict, grant a new trial because of errors or questions about evidence, or decide that evidence was not sufficient to convict. The final option, King explains, "acts like an acquittal, and there would be no retrial."

Though she says she is as optimistic about the Gunn case as she ever is about any appeal, King points out that the rate for cases being overturned is, by her own estimate, only 3 to 5 percent. And even if the case were overturned, it wouldn't be soon: "Once I've filed a brief, the attorney general's office — they take over it — the district attorney at the level — will take two or three months to file a response. Then I get the last words to file a reply brief within days after they file. So we're talking about four months from now, realistically, before all the briefing is done. Then it's just in the hands of the Court of Appeals. I usually takes a few months. So it will be a year, maybe a little less, from today. Kevin knows."

OFFICER STATEMENT:

I responded to [REDACTED] on a call of a pedestrian robbery. A witness (Loper) flagged me down as I was enroute there, at Florida and Madison, showing me a brown wallet in the street and saying "He just drove south on Florida St. and east on Meade Ave., about 3 minutes ago. He dropped the wallet here." I was also approached by another witness (Schroeder) who said he had followed the suspect after the crime. I took their statements and gave the wallet to Officer Kimber Hammond #4931 to return to the victim. I conducted a witness check and searched the area for evidence. I showed Agent Mark Annis #2981 the path that the suspect had taken so he could complete his evidence collection.

WITNESS STATEMENT:

David Menno Schroeder (witness) told me: I was with my boss, John Burkholder, on Adams Avenue, when I saw the elderly white man on the ground and a large black male over him. The victim (white male) was face down on the grass. The suspect (black male) hit him in the head with his fist. Then he was frisking him all over, as if looking for a wallet or other property on him. I saw him take a wallet from the victim. I thought the victim was dead. The suspect slowly walked away and watched me watching him. John called 911 and I followed the suspect. He was on foot and I was in my car. I saw him go behind [REDACTED] then I lost him. I told the other guy (Schroeder) to watch him as he walked through the property at [REDACTED] was driving around in my truck, looking for him in the alleys. But I never saw him again.

He was a black male, 35-45, 220 pounds, 5'10 to 6'0. He was wearing a black and white checkered flannel shirt, and a grayish or light blue baseball cap. I don't know if he had any facial hair or not. He had a medium black complexion and kinky hair. It was a bad haircut. He had a very large build. John can tell you more about him.

I am moving to Las Vegas next week. I'm not sure exactly when, but John (Burkholder) can get in touch with me.

Dennis Wayne Loper (witness) told me: I had just pulled my car into the yard in the alley at my apartment at [REDACTED] I saw a large black male walking ahead of me through my yard toward my building. He was walking very slowly and calmly. I was watching him when this guy in a truck

(Schroeder) came up to me, screaming at me to watch him, that he had just robbed and beat up someone. So I followed him to the front of my building, then ducked into my apartment area for a couple of seconds. When I then walked to the front yard, I saw him driving south on Florida St. right in front of me. I saw him pull to the right curb about 3/4 of the way down the block [REDACTED]. I could see him with his head bent over, apparently looking through the wallet. Then he continued driving south and he threw the wallet out the driver window when he got to the stop sign at Madison Ave. He continued south and turned (left) east on the street before the red light. (Meade Ave.) He was in no hurry, I'll tell you that.

The suspect is a black male, 40-45, 200 pounds, 6'0 to 6'3, wearing a long-sleeved black and white checkered flannel shirt (the checks were about 1 1/2 inches square), dark jeans or pants. He had a very dark complexion, a short natural type haircut and I don't know if he had any facial hair or not. He had a wide face, big eyes and a wide forehead. He has a very large build. He was very calm and casual.

He was driving an older black "boxy" type compact car, similar to a Toyota Corolla, but I don't know what make it was for sure. It had faded black paint and was a 4 door. It had a white plate, California, I think, with a possible plate of something like --C25-. I don't remember any stickers or anything unusual about the car. It didn't make any loud engine noises.

WITNESS CHECK:

I went to the 4-plex apartment building at [REDACTED] and looked for witnesses. I found no one home at [REDACTED]. I contacted Jack Fresh [REDACTED], who said he had not seen nor heard anything.

Origin/Probable Cause:

Officer J. Troussel #5293 and I responded to the area of [REDACTED] to look for a robbery suspect who had just beaten and robbed an elderly gentleman. While searching the area we saw a black 4 door compact car driving E/B on Madison Ave. just west of I-805. We followed the car and saw that the driver was a tall black male with a plaid shirt and baseball cap on and had a fair complexion. This matched the description of the suspect. We initiated a traffic stop at [REDACTED]. We told the driver to step out and I conducted a pat-down search as he was wearing a flannel shirt and I was unable to see if he was armed or not. I obtained "FI" information and Officer Cooley #4870 brought a witness by to view the driver. According to the witness, the driver was not the suspect. The driver was then released.

STATEMENT OF VERA BRENNAN:

Vera Brennan told me she was riding her bicycle and saw Kamien laying on the ground in front of [REDACTED]. He was bleeding, and she saw the suspect leaning over him going through his pockets. She said the suspect "ran" eastbound Adams. She tried to follow him on her bike but lost sight of him near Florida and Adams. She described the suspect as a tall black male, wearing white pants and a dark colored shirt.

STATEMENT OF JOHN BURKHOLDER:

Burkholder told me he was driving on Adams Ave. in his vehicle when he looked over and saw the suspect violently kicking Kamien as he (Kamien) lay on the lawn in front of the apartment building at [REDACTED]. Burkholder stopped his car as the man bent over and began going through Kamien's pants pockets. The suspect removed Kamien's wallet and then fled eastbound on Adams Ave.

Burkholder ran to "Cheers Bar" across the street and told them to call the police. He then returned to Kamien until paramedics arrived. Burkholder described the suspect's clothing as "dark clothing, possibly a blue sweatshirt and brown pants" or something similar.

STATEMENT OF WILLIAM MARNHOUT:

Marnhout told me he is the bartender at "Cheers". He was unaware of the incident until Burkholder came into the bar and told someone to call the police. Marnhout ran across the street to help the victim. He found the driver's licenses and the ATM card on the ground next to Kamien and held onto them until police arrived.

Synopsis:

Carole Pomplin was attacked by an unknown suspect at 4300 33rd Street. Pomplin suffered numerous injuries from the attack. The suspect took Pomplin's purse and left the scene before officers arrived.

Origin:

On 03-04-99, at 1056 hours, Officer Southerland #4679 and I responded to a call of a robbery that occurred at 4300 33rd Street.

Officer's Investigation:

On arrival I made contact with the victim who was identified as Carole Pomplin. I saw Pomplin bleeding from the facial area and she was holding a bloody rag to her nose. I called for an ambulance to evaluate the extent of Pomplin's injuries. I got a description of the suspect from Pomplin. Pomplin described the suspect as a black male, tall, thin build, brown jacket, and dark pants. I read the description to the dispatcher. Pomplin said she was dizzy, so I had her sit in my patrol vehicle for her safety. Pomplin told me essentially the following:

Statement of Carole Pomplin:

Pomplin was standing in front of [REDACTED] Pomplin was playing with the dogs in the gated yard of the residence. Pomplin began walking southbound on 33rd Street when she noticed the dogs started barking at something. Pomplin turned to see what the dogs are barking at, and she was attacked by an unknown suspect. The suspect hit Pomplin on the back side of her head and pushed her down. Pomplin believes the push resulted in her striking her nose on the cement, causing it to bleed. The suspect grabbed Pomplin's purse and pulled it off her right shoulder/arm. Pomplin did not recognize the suspect. Pomplin believes she could possibly identify the suspect. The suspect did not say anything to Pomplin during the attack.

Investigation:

After getting Pomplin's statement, Medic unit #18 arrived on scene. Pomplin refused medical treatment. Officer Hays #3184 had individual detained at [REDACTED] identified as Kenneth Swinton. I asked Pomplin if she could identify the suspect, she said, "possibly." Pomplin consented to a Curbside Line-Up. I

OFFICER STATEMENT

I VOLUNTEERED TO ASSIST OFFICERS ON A ROBBERY CALL AT [REDACTED]. I ARRIVED AND CONDUCTED A WITNESS CHECK. I TALKED WITH THE MANAGER OF THE AM/PM SERVICE STATION AT [REDACTED]. THE MANAGER, ROSE ANDAYA HAD RECENTLY ARRIVED AT WORK. ANDAYA THEN HEARD A WITNESS SAY THE ROBBERY SUSPECT WAS TALKED AT THE WATER/AIR PUMP OF THE SERVICE STATION. ANDAYA TOLD ME SHE HAD PARKED HER VEHICLE NEXT TO THE SUSPECT'S VEHICLE WHEN SHE ARRIVED. I TOLD HER STATEMENT.

STATEMENT OF ROSE ANDAYA

ANDAYA TOLD ME WHEN SHE PARKED HER VEHICLE AT THE LOT, SHE NOTICED A BLACK OLDER VEHICLE NEXT TO HER. SHE DESCRIBED THE DRIVER AS A BLACK MALE, 6-0 TALL, 250-275, SHORT HAIR, CLEAN CUT, WITH A DARK COMPLEXION. SHE NOTICED THE DRIVER BECAUSE HE HAD TROUBLE CLOSING THE DOOR. SHE GLANCED AT HIM THEN LOOKED AWAY. THEN SHE HEARD HIM ATTEMPT TO START THE ENGINE. THE VEHICLE SOUNDED AS IF IT WOULD NOT START SO SHE LOOKED

ON 3-4-99, AT [REDACTED], I RECEIVED A RADIO CALL TO ASSIST UNIT 84261, OFFICER STEVE SOUTHERLAND # 4679 AND OFFICER ROBERT ACOSTA # 5528 ON A STRONGARM ROBBERY THAT OCCURRED AT 4300 33RD STREET. THE INCIDENT NUMBER WAS P99030007306.

UPON ARRIVAL, I CONDUCTED A WITNESS CHECK IN THE AREA. I LOCATED THE FOLLOWING WITNESSES THE CRIME.

STATEMENTSNOTE:

His identification is different than the victims

STATEMENT OF TIMMY ANDERSON (WITNESS)

I WAS AT WORK AND STANDING IN THE ULTIMATE MOTORCARS LTD WHEN I HEARD A DOG START BARKING ACROSS THE STREET NEAR THE ARCO STATION. I LOOKED UP AND SAW A B/M/A 6'1" 200+ LBS WEARING A BLACK BEANIE SKT CAP, BLACK JACKET, AND BLACK PANTS. THE BLACK MALE PUNCHED A WHITE FEMALE IN THE FACE. HE GRABBED HER PURSE AND WALKED OVER TO A BLACK FOUR DOOR CAR THAT WAS PARKED IN THE EAST PART OF THE

ARCO PARKING LOT. THE BLACK MALE KNEELED DOWN BETWEEN HIS CAR AND ANOTHER ONE AS HE GOT HIS KEYS OUT. HE LOOKED ACROSS THE STREET AND SAW ME WATCHING HIM. HE THEN PUT ONE FINGER UP TO HIS MOUTH MAKING A SYMBOL FOR ME TO KEEP QUIET. THE BLACK MALE THEN GOT INTO HIS CAR AND IT APPEARED HE WAS TRYING TO START IT.

I THEN SAW A POLICE CAR DRIVE UP AND CONTACT THE WHITE FEMALE. THE BLACK MALE GOT HIS CAR STARTED BACK OUT AND LEFT NORTHBOND ON 33RD STREET.

I WAS UNABLE TO SEE THE LICENSE PLATE OF THE VEHICLE. I DO KNOW IT WAS A WHITE PLATE WITH BLUE LETTERS AND NUMBERS. I THINK I COULD IDENTIFY THE BLACK MALE IF I SAW HIM AGAIN.

STATEMENT OF KATRINA HALL (REPORTING PARTY)

I WAS WORKING INSIDE THE ARCO STATION WHEN I DECIDED TO GO GRAB MY JACKET OUT OF MY CAR. MY CAR WAS PARKED ON THE EAST SIDE OF THE ARCO BUILDING. I WALKED OUT TO MY CAR AND GRABBED MY JACKET. I WAS RETURNING TO THE STORE BECAUSE A CUSTOMER WAS WALKING IN THE FRONT DOOR. BEFORE I GOT BACK INSIDE I HEARD A FEMALE SCREAMING FOR HELP. I LOOKED TOWARD 33RD STREET BUT COULD NOT SEE ANYTHING DUE TO A LARGE WALL. I HAD TO GO INSIDE

THE STORE AND HELP THE CUSTOMER. ONCE BACK INSIDE THE STORE, I SAW A WHITE FEMALE WALK INTO THE STORE. SHE WAS BLEEDING FROM THE FACE. SHE ASKED ME TO CALL THE POLICE. I ASKED HER, WHY, WHAT HAPPEN? THE WHITE FEMALE SAID SHE WAS ROBBED. I CALLED THE POLICE AND WAS TALKING TO THE DISPATCHER WHEN I SAW A POLICE CAR DRIVE UP. I THEN ADVISED THE DISPATCHER THE POLICE WERE HERE AND HUNG UP THE TELEPHONE.

AFTER TALKING WITH HALL, I CHECKED ARCO'S CC TAPES BUT THEY DO NOT HAVE A CAMERA ON THE EAST SIDE OF THE BUILDING. HALL SAID HE DID NOT REMEMBER THE BLACK MALE, MATCHING THE SUSPECTS DESCRIPTION, COMING IN THE STORE. I VIEWED THE TAPE AND DID NOT SEE ANY PATRONS COME INTO THE STORE MATCHING THE SUSPECTS DESCRIPTION.

SYNOPSIS:

An unknown black male suspect punched Fortunato twice in the back of her head while she was loading groceries into her van. He took her purse containing over $600.00 in cash.
Inc#P99040011318.

ORIGIN:

I responded to assist on a radio call of a car jacking. The first unit to arrive at the scene advised the car jacking was actually a purse snatching. Due to a language barrier the original information put out by dispatch was not completely accurate.

INVESTIGATION:

When I arrived several units were checking the area for the suspect. Motor Off B Hibsman, 3773, was with the victim, relaying suspect information over the air. I went to the scene to assist Off Hibsman.

The robbery occurred in the parking lot behind [REDACTED]

The Victim, later identified as Rosetta Fortunato, is an Italian speaker. I noticed she was holding the back of her head. There was a large lump forming on the left back side of her head. I ordered an ambulance for her.

Off Hibsman took witness, John Haollaoran, in his patrol car and checked the area for the suspect.

Fortunato was hysterical, crying and yelling. She appeared to be quite frightened. I requested an Italian speaking Officer. I obtained limited information from Fortunato. Italian speaking Off L Zizzo, 3087, responded to the scene.

Paramedic unit # 31 [James Barnett and Rick Lewis] responded to our location, evaluated Fortunato's head injury, and transported her to Kaiser Permanente for treatment. Off Zizzo accompanied Fortunato to Kaiser and took her statement. [See Off Zizzo's attached report.]

Off Hibsman brought witness Haolloran to me. I took Haolloran's statement.

STATEMENTS:

Statement of John Haolloran [Witness]:

"I was walking out of the Pep Boys on the north side of 3600 El Cajon Blvd. I heard a woman scream. I saw a black guy about 6'3", thin build, 45-50 years old, wearing a black and white checkered flanel, walking quickly north across El Cajon Blvd. He walked behind the Challenger Car Wash and turned left (West). I followed him in my car. I lost track of the guy in the north alley of 3500 El Cajon Blvd behind the Challenger Car Wash. I never saw the guy make it to 35th St. I'm sure he never crossed 35th. St." Haolloran told me he can ID the suspect.

I spoke to another witness, Donald Stowell, in the parking lot and took his statement.

Statement of Donald Stowell [Witness]:

"I was showing my condo to a prospective tenant. [Stowell's condo is located directly south of the parking lot where Fortunato was attacked. West side of Wilson.] We were standing in the alley [West alley of 4200 Wilson]. I saw this tall thin black man. He was about 6'4" with short black hair, loitering around at our dumpster. The guy saw me and walked north towards where the woman was attacked. About a minute later I heard a woman screaming. I came over when I saw the police cars here." Stowell told me he can ID the suspect.

I was advised Off Hibsman located Fortunato's purse behind 3504 El Cajon Blvd under a car parked in the alley there. Next to the passenger side front tire. Off Hibsman recovered the purse. There was $163.00 in a side pocket of the purse. I took custody of the purse.

A white male, later identified as Leroy Abbey, told Off's he found a bag with a wallet in it next to the power box, directly behind the Challenger Car Was 3540 El Cajon Blvd.

I photographed the wallet that contained identification, grocery cards, and Fortunato's check book.

"I was canning in the dumpsters. I saw this wallet on the ground next to that power box. I told one of the several Police Officers that were driving around the area."

I spoke to Steve Doecker in the alley directly behind 3540 El Cajon Blvd. Doecker is a local transient.

Statement of Steve Doecker [Witness]:

NO MENTION OF SEEING a SUSPECT! ONLY during trial

"I know this other homeless guy. He's hispanic. His name is Oscar. He knows that black guy who's robbing all the old people out here. Oscar says the guy drives a burgundy Cadillac. He lives somewhere in the area of 4200 35th St. That's wrong what he's doing. You can reach me at the phone number and address I gave you."

Whoever Oscar was, he was not called as a witness????

I drove to Kaiser Hospital where Fortunato identified the purse, wallet, and check book as the one that were stolen in the attack.

BACKGROUND:

None.

EVIDENCE:

Fortunato's purse, wallet, and check book were returned to her. A photograph of wallet and where it was found is attached to the Investigator's copies of this report.

INJURIES:

Fortunato had a large lump on the back left side of her head.

NORTH PARK -- A man was found severely beaten, bleeding from head wounds and unconscious in an alley near 28th and Landis streets yesterday, the victim of an apparent assault and robbery, police said.

The man, believed to be in his 60s, carried no identification and his pant pockets were turned inside out when he was found about 8:20 a.m., said San Diego police homicide Lt. Jim Duncan.

"We believe he may have been robbed during the assault," Duncan said. The man was hospitalized with a skull fracture.

NORTH PARK -- A man, 71, died of the injuries he received last Wednesday when he was beaten and apparently robbed in the alley behind 28th Street during his morning walk, police said.

LeRay Parkins was found in the alley about 8:45 a.m. He had been struck on the head several times and the pockets of his pants were turned inside out, San Diego police homicide Lt. Jim Duncan said.

He remained on life support at a hospital. He was pronounced dead Saturday. Parkins lived nearby, on Landis Street, and is survived by a son. Anyone with information on the attack is asked to call police at (619) 531-2293.

Ex-con gets life for two attacks

Man beat woman, took nurse hostage

By J. Harry Jones

STAFF WRITER

A remorseless ex-convict fell asleep in a San Diego courtroom yesterday as he was ordered back to prison for beating and robbing a woman on a downtown street and taking a nurse hostage in the downtown jail.

Just before nodding off, Marvin Goldston told a judge he was glad to be moved from the local jail where he has been held because he will be able to smoke cigarettes again.

Smoking is prohibited in the local jails.

Goldston, who has been kept away from other inmates while in San Diego, said he also is looking forward to prison because he will be able to have sex with other inmates.

Deputies had to nudge the heavily guarded and shackled Goldston several times to wake him up as he sat at the defense table.

"Mr. Goldston is one of the most dangerous people I've come across in 30 years," Superior Court Judge Michael Wellington said in imposing a life term plus 25 years. "He is an enormous danger."

Goldston, 33, was convicted in January of assaulting and robbing Maria Dadian on March 15 near Front and F streets in downtown San Diego. Dadian, the city manager of Artesia and wife of local political lobbyist John Dadian, suffered severe injuries of the head and face when the 365-pound Goldston struck her on the head and grabbed her purse.

Goldston testified that he had committed "thousands" of similar robberies in his lifetime. He said he attacked Dadian to get money to buy drugs.

Last week, after a separate trial, Goldston was convicted of numerous charges, including kidnapping for ransom, in connection with taking jail nurse Cloribel de Silva hostage in his cell Nov. 11. Goldston, but weighed her by about 280 pounds.

That jury was shown a videotape of the incident in which the nurse could be heard begging and crying throughout the 75-minute ordeal with one of Goldston's beefy arms wrapped around her neck. He also threatened her by holding a sharpened pencil tip to one of her eyes.

Goldston told jailers he was doing so because he wanted cigarettes, magazines and Los Angeles defense attorney Johnnie Cochran.

Goldston will be eligible for a parole hearing when he is 68 years old, said prosecutor Blaine Bowman.

Jury finds man guilty of assault, robbery

By J. Harry Jones
STAFF WRITER

An ex-convict who testified he has committed thousands of robberies was convicted yesterday of an attack here against the city manager of a Los Angeles County city.

Marvin Goldston was found guilty by a jury of assaulting and robbing Maria Dadian near Front and F streets in downtown San Diego on March 15.

Dadian, the city manager of Artesia and the wife of local political lobbyist John Dadian, suffered severe injuries to her head and face when the 365-pound Goldston struck her on the head and grabbed her purse.

Goldston, 33, testified that he robbed Dadian because he needed money to buy crack cocaine and that he has robbed thousands of people over the years.

Dadian testified that she still suffers headaches and blurry vision from the attack in which several of her teeth were knocked out.

When Dadian's husband testified about his wife's injuries,

Goldston laughed out loud. It took the jury less than two hours to reach its verdicts.

Goldston was convicted of assault, battery and robbery. He was acquitted of a torture charge.

Prosecutor Blaine Bowman had argued that Goldston's attack was in part motivated by a sadistic desire to inflict pain. However, Goldston said he hit Dadian just once with great force in order to "keep her from screaming."

Bowman said Goldston faces 18 years in prison when sentenced at a hearing scheduled Feb. 13. Had he been found guilty of the torture charge, the sentence could have been life in prison.

"This is an animal who made the city unsafe for everybody," said John Dadian outside court yesterday after the verdicts.

Goldston has a prison history. He served three years in New York for a 1985 robbery conviction.

Goldston still faces kidnapping, attempted murder and other charges stemming from an alleged attack upon a nurse in the downtown San Diego County Jail in November.

He is accused holding the woman, Cloribel de Silva, hostage by holding a sharpened pencil to the 88-pound nurse's eye for more than an hour.

Goldston testified at an earlier hearing he took the nurse hostage to get the attention of deputies who refused to let him smoke in jail. He also testified he wants to return to prison, where cigarettes and drugs are easily obtained on the black market.

Goldston faces two life-prison terms if convicted on those charges.

September 18, 1999

Mr. Paul Pfingst
District Attorney
330 W. Broadway
San Diego, CA. 92101-3826

Dear Mr. Pfingst

I am writing this letter to raise some issues in regard to the District Attorney's Office as I perceived it during the trial of People v. Gunn, which concluded September 17, 1999. I was a juror.

I understand that the District Attorney's office may well be overworked. My comments and criticisms are not based solely on lack of time in preparation or investigation (although I suggest bit more time should have been taken). Lack of time or overwork can not be allowed to be an excuse for sloppy prosecution especially in a case where lack of conviction puts a dangerous criminal back on the streets as was nearly the case here.

To begin with, after the prosecutions opening statements, I barely had an idea of what she intended to prove. There was no framework on which to hang the scattered bits of evidence. I was not alone in this perception. To be fair, the defense did an equally confusing job (as one jury member commented on entering the court room it was not clear as to which one was the lawyer and which the defendant).

Much of the identification depended on perceptions of height. It was suggested that an expert would testify- that never happened.

Witnesses described the 6'8" (or so the defense said) defendant as 6' or 6' plus or 6'2" etc. Obviously the jury was aware that people have difficulties in estimating heights- however, it was left to the jurors to raise the issue of estimating height of some one seated. The witnesses were also never asked if there description could extend to someone the size of the defendant.

The street map- a people's exhibit- left out many of the alleys that were referred to by witnesses.

A witness identifying a tear in a shirt must have caught the prosecutor by surprise-, as there was no testimony as to when or if he had seen the shirt up close before that time.

No introduction of evidence as to how commonly even traffic officers misread license plates or the likelihood of randomly getting two out of seven numbers/letters correct.

pg 12 of 17

The defense used an exhibit that was prepared with excessive contrast- (composite drawing) so much so that the witness who directed the drawing denied it was the one he did.

The defense kept saying 2:14 to 2:15 was equal or less than one minute when this can cover a two-minute span. Time and/or elapsed time were an issue! No mention of the lack of synchronization between the clocks used for 911 calls and the clocks used on the market video presented as evidence. Again, time was an issue.

The time or even the day of a money order purchase or even the location of the purchase was never mentioned. Time and location again were issues.

The defendant's girlfriend testifies that she had the car described in the case on the day she and Mr. Gunn broke up yet he was identified in that car that day-prosecution seemed not to notice. She further testified that she had no contact with Mr. Gunn until she moved back in with him- no comment from the prosecution. She claimed that she used the car to get to work and on occasion allowed Mr. Gunn to use it- did he drive her and pick her up etc-.

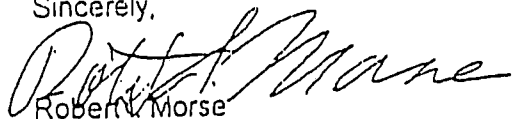

Certain descriptions and views of the crime scene would have made more sense with models or photograph taken from the position the witnesses were in.

Perhaps most egregious was to have the prosecutor ask her own witness if she was a psychic or clairvoyant (The jurors did not recall which or if both were used.)

It is not my purpose to be inclusive. Based on the prosecutor's performance, had the jury been less proactive or less intelligent there would not have been a conviction and a dangerous criminal would be back on the streets.

Neither overwork nor public service is an excuse for substandard performance.

Sincerely,

Robert N. Morse

Jury misconduct possible in Gunn's conviction

EULA BISS
Staff Writer

Kevin Gunn has been serving sentence of 17 years in prison since he was convicted on two of three counts of robbery in 1999. He appealed this decision in January of 2002 and won what his attorney called a "partial victory." The appellate court's decision upheld the original conviction but acknowledged the possibility of jury bias or misconduct and granted Mr. Gunn permission to investigate this possibility.

Evidence of jury misconduct could convince the court to grant Mr. Gunn a new trial, but his public defender has not found enough evidence to file a motion for a new trial. At this point, Mr. Gunn's problematic case might have reached a dead end in the system.

Mr. Gunn was one of several people arrested as suspects in a highly publicized series of robberies against elderly people. There were nearly a dozen witnesses to the robberies for which Mr. Gunn was on trial and the case against him depended on the ability of these witnesses to positively identify Mr. Gunn as the man involved in the crimes.

Not a single witness made a positive identification of Mr. Gunn in a photographic lineup. Also, not a single witness gave an accurate physical description of Mr. Gunn. Most witnesses described a 6' to 6'4" black man with a very dark complexion. Several also described the man as having a thin or medium build. Mr. Gunn is unusually tall, light skinned and at 6'9" and 350 pounds he is the size of a professional football player. Despite these differences, the jury convicted Mr. Gunn of the robberies. His appeal of the conviction argued that there was "insufficient evidence to support the judgment" and that the trial court erred by refusing to disclose information about the jury.

On September 18, 1999, one day after the jury returned its verdict in Mr. Gunn's trial, the jury's foreperson wrote a letter to the District Attorney to complain about the prosecutor's presentation of the People's case against Gunn. The letter criticized the confusing presentation by the prosecutor and the lack of expert testimony. "Obviously the jury was aware that people have difficulties in estimating heights," the foreperson wrote, referring to the fact that many witnesses estimated the height of the man they saw as shorter than Mr. Gunn's actual height, "it was left to the jury to raise the issue of estimating [the] height of [someone] seated." The juror's letter concluded, "Based on the prosecutor's performance, had the jury been less proactive or less intelligent there would not that the jurors may have engaged in improper actions in 'proactively' deciding Gunn's guilt or innocence, Gunn should be given a reasonable opportunity to contact the jurors and determine whether there was, in fact, any juror bias or misconduct."

The decision by the appellate court stated, "It can reasonably be

Mr. Gunn's appeal attorney, Nancy King, says that she was not optimistic about this process because "jurors are notoriously reluctant to say, 'we made a mistake.'" In order for Mr. Gunn to be granted a new trial, says Mr. King, the jurors would have to admit that they "ignored the evidence and convicted him because he's big and he's mean looking. Ms. King no longer represents Mr. Gunn but she would like to see his case move forward. "He's a good guy," says Ms. King. "He's very articulate and very intelligent and I think he's right, I think there's a problem with the conviction."

Mr. Gunn's case is now in the hands of his public defender, Steve Wadler. Mr. Wadler was reluctant to discuss the case with the Voice and Viewpoint and said only that he had not found enough evidence of jury misconduct to file a motion for a new trial. When he was asked what the next step would be in Mr. Gunn's case, he said, "You'll have to speak to Nancy King about that." Ms. King, however, was Mr. Gunn's appeal attorney and she has not been responsible for his case since the appellate court upheld his conviction in January. Ms. King says that if Mr. Wadler is unable to file a motion for a new trial, Mr. Gunn's case is finished at the state level. His only chance for a new trial would be in federal court.

Mr. Gunn's case was investigated by the Innocence Project, California Western School of Law. There was a possibility that he would be able to file a petition for a new trial through the Innocence Project, but the Voice and Viewpoint was not able to determine whether the Innocence Project was still working on Mr. Gunn's case. Without the active support of the public defender or the Innocence Project, it is very likely that Mr. Gunn will remain in jail. "I need the community's support," Mr. Gunn wrote the Voice and Viewpoint from jail, "My family and I can't do it alone."

POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT THEREOF
(PENAL CODE §1181)
DATE: May 17, 2000
DEPT: J. Enright, 9:00 a.m.

Please take notice that on the date, time and department noted above, defendant Kevin Gunn will move the court for a new trial.

Defendant KEVIN GUNN submits the following Points and Authorities in support of his motion for a new trial. The motion is made on the ground that the verdict was contrary to law and the evidence, the jury was not impartial and relied on evidence that was not presented at the trial and the numerous instances of law enforcement misconduct and perjury rendered the trial fundamentally unfair in violation of Mr. Gunn's constitutional right to a fair trial.

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS

2 The Court heard the trial in this matter and is thus familiar
3 with the procedural and factual underpinnings of the instant action. It,
4 therefore, will not be repeated in great detail herein.

5 The evidence in count 1 consisted, in part, of the testimony of 6 Mr. ^{Dennis} ~~Duane~~ Loper, and his in court identifications. Mr. Lopers' 7 identifications of the defendant were made only in court at the 8 preliminary hearing and at the trial. He affirmatively excluded him in 9 a photo lineup (more on that later).

10 His description and composite drawing were nowhere close to the 11 actual characteristics of Mr. Gunn. Mr. Gunn was affirmatively cleared
12 at the scene by witness Burkholder and cleared once again by that same 13 witness in a subsequent photo line up wherein he remembered Mr. Gunn and 14 pointed him out to Det. Meaux.

15 The license plate number of the black "get away" car given was not 16 even close to the one on the black car driven by Mr. Gunn when he was 17 detained on 2/24/99.

18 The damage to the drivers' side was incapable of being seen by Mr.
19 Loper as was established under cross-examination.

20 The jury utilized the damage to the car and the door from this 21 count as crossover evidence with Count 2. The testimony of the defendant 22 exiting the passenger and not the damaged drivers' side came from 23 Officer Troussel.

24 The evidence pertinent here concerns the intentional withholding of 25 exculpatory evidence by lead detective, Pete Griffin as well as the 26 perjurious testimony of patrol officer Troussel with regard to the 27 traffic stop made of Mr. Gunn on 2/24/99. Though the jury hung on this 28 count they clearly considered the evidence given on this count in its'
(128)

1 deliberations on the remaining counts as evidenced by their question in 2 that regard.

3 It was apparent from the formative stages of this case, including 4 the preliminary hearing, that Duane Loper was a pivotal witness for the 5 prosecution with regard to the identity of the robber of Mr. Kamien.
6 Despite providing descriptive information dramatically different than 7 the actual appearance of Mr. Gunn, Mr. Loper identified Mr. Gunn at 8 prelim and at trial as the robber.

9 Mr. Loper testified at the preliminary hearing, held on May 27,
10 1999, that he was shown at photo lineup containing Mr. Gunns' photograph
11 prior to the preliminary hearing. RT at 47:24-49:20. Counsel for Mr.
12 Gunn spent considerable time cross-examining Mr. Loper at the 13 preliminary hearing regarding the timing and presentation of the photo 14 lineup presented to Mr. Loper because the parties did not have any 15 report concerning such a line up. The confusion caused by this testimony 16 prompted defense counsel to specifically inquire of Detective Griffin as 17 to whether or not he was aware of such a line up and he answered in the 18 negative.158:7-10.

19 At the trial in this action, the prosecutor and defense counsel .
20 were taken by surprise when Detective Meaux testified that he had shown 21 Mr. Loper a photo line up on April 9, ¹⁹⁹⁹~~2000~~, the same day he showed 22 witness Burkholder the same spread. He further testified that he gave 23 both line up forms to Detective Griffin by leaving them in the same 24 envelope on his desk. Detective Griffin only turned the Burholder line
25 up over to the prosecution, thus the prosecution was unable to turn it 26 over to the defense.

27 The results of the photo line up exculpated Mr. Gunn in that Mr.
28 Loper had specifically excluded Mr. Gunn as the robber. This reality was

1 not known to the defense until after Mr. Loper had testified at the 2 preliminary hearing and the trial thus depriving the defense of an 3 extremely valuable tool for purposes of cross-examination at both 4 hearings. This deprivation came about as a direct result of the 5 intentional withholding of the line up results by Detective Griffin.

6 Officer Troussel also perjured himself when he testified that he 7 followed Mr. Gunn up and down streets and alleys before effectuating the 8 traffic stop detention that lead to Mr. Burkholder clearing Mr. Gunn of 9 any wrongdoing. This was proved conclusively by the dispatch tape played 10 for the jury and by the cross-examination of this witness.

11 Despite the weakness of this count, the jury hung 10-2 for guilt.

12 As to count 2, victim and clairvoyant, Carole Pomplin identified Mr.
13 Gunn in court. She failed to pick him out of a photo line up and failed
14 to identify him at the preliminary hearing. Her robber approached her 15 from behind and struck her to the ground. Her post incident description
16 did not fit Mr. Gunn. Her in court identification lacks the requisite 17 credibility to support this verdict.

18 Timmy Anderson, the witness from the car lot, could not identify 19 the robber in a photo line up, could not identify him at the preliminary 20 hearing and could not identify him in court.

21 Rose Anaya, the witness from the AMPM, could not identify the 22 robber in a photo line up, could not identify him at the preliminary 23 hearing and could not identify him in court.

24 The only evidence the jury could use to tie Mr. Gunn to this count
25 was the existence of a black car and Mr. Gunn having been detained in a 26 black car in Count 1. The black car was not described in any detail by 27 any of the witnesses. The black car driven by Mr. Gunn in the first 28 count did not fit the license plate description of the black car used by

1 the actual robber. In short, the jury could only have convicted Mr. Gunn
2 of the Pomplin robbery based on the fact of the black car. Clearly, such 3 evidence is insufficient, especially in light of Det. Eastus testimony 4 of having canvassed the neighborhood and coming across "hundreds" of 5 cars that could have fit the description of the one used in the 6 robberies.

7 As to Count 3, victim Fortunato identified Mr. Gunn in court at the 8 preliminary hearing and at the trial. This despite having been unable to 9 pick him out of a photo line up. Ms. Fortunato was no doubt confident
10 that the police had their man and identified Mr. Gunn out of that belief
11 as opposed recalling him from memory. She also testified that the robber 12 approached her from behind and knocked her down. She simply did not have 13 the opportunity to view the robber sufficient to make a credible
14 identification.

15 The evidence was uncontroverted that Mr. Gunn was in the store at 16 the time of the robbery based on the 911 call and the store video. The 17 descriptions given by witnesses Halloren and Stowall were inconsistent
18 with the defendant and they could not identify him in court or in a 19 photo lineup.

20 The jury chose to ignore these realities and convict an innocent
21 man as a favor to Paul Pfingst who should be grateful for their "pro-22 active (pro-prosecution/law enforcement?)" stance.

23 They chose to assume, in the absence of evidence, that traffic cops 24 routinely completely misread license plates. They chose to assume, in 25 the absence of evidence, that the 911 call and the store video were not 26 synchronized. They chose to assume, in the absence of evidence, that the 27 defense was trying to trick them by darkening the composite. They chose 28 to ignore that not one witness described the robber as being taller than

1 6'4" tall and that the majority of the witnesses described the robber as 2 dark skinned with a thin to medium build, instead they casually noted
 3 that witnesses can be wrong about such things. Finally, they chose to 4 ignore the withholding of exculpatory evidence by the lead detective
 5 and the perjury of a key law enforcement officer in the case.

 7 STATEMENT OF LAW

8 Penal Code §1181 provides that the court may grant a new trial:

9 1. When the verdict is contrary to law or evidence.

10 The court may also grant a new trial whenever failure to do so would 11 result in denial of a fair trial. People v. Davis (1973) 31 Cal.App.3d 12 106, 109. The trial court's authority to grant a new trial on non-13 statutory grounds derives from its constitutional duty to insure an 14 accused a fair trial. Id. at 109.

15 A defendant in a criminal case has a constitutional right to have 16 the charges against him or her determined by a fair and impartial juror.
 17 People v. Maxwell, (1987) 191 Cal.App.2d 925, 929.

18 This reality is why every juror must take an oath to "render true
 19 verdict according only to evidence presented to you and the instructions 20 of the court". CCP section 232(b).

21 It is axiomatic that "the jury's receipt of evidence which has not 22 been admitted is error which creates a presumption of prejudice to the 23 defendant". People v. Sassounian, 182 Cal.App.3d 399.

24 An important corollary to this rule is that a juror cannot "inject
 25 his or her own expertise into the jury deliberations". People v.
 26 Cabrera, (1991) 230 Cal.App.3d 303.

27 Jury misconduct under §1181(3) has long been considered grounds for 28 a new trial. See People v. Hedgecock (1990) 51 Cal.3d 395.

1 When presented with a motion for new trial predicated upon a claim
2 that the verdict returned is contrary to the law or evidence it is the 3 duty of the trial to independently review the evidence. This standard 4 of independent review has existed as early as 1953 and was set out in 5 People v. Robarge, 41 Cal.2d 628:

6 "While it is the exclusive province of the jury to find the 7 facts, it is the duty of the trial court to see that this 8 function is intelligently and justly performed, and in the 9 exercise of its supervisory power over the verdict, the court,
10 on motion for a new trial, should consider the probative force
11 of the evidence and satisfy itself that the evidence as a 12 whole is sufficient to sustain the verdict."

13 [Id at 633, citations omitted.]

14 While the trial court is not free to ignore the verdict returned, 15 [People v. Lopez (1969) 1 Cal.App.3d 78, 85] it is not bound by the 16 jury's resolution of evidentiary conflicts. People v. Veitch (1979) 89
17 Cal.App.3d 722, 730-731.

18 Thus the trial court not only has the power to rule on the 19 sufficiency of the evidence but the duty to do so. People v. Borchers
20 (1958) 50 Cal.2d 321, 325. This requires the court to give the moving 21 party the benefit of its independent judgement as to the sufficiency and 22 credibility of the evidence. People v. Redmond (1969) 71 Cal.2d 745,
23 759-760. Existing case law suggests a two prong test is to be applied 24 in reviewing an application for such relief; first a review of the 25 sufficiency of the evidence; and second, a determination on whether the 26 court deems the evidence to be believable.

27 It is also important to note that such relief may be granted
28 despite the fact that the only evidence submitted is that of the

1 prosecution and is legally sufficient. People v. Sarazzawski (1945) 27
2 Cal.2d 7, 16, cited in Vietch, supra.

4 People v. Davis, (1973) 31 Cal.App.3d 106

5 The Davis court made crystal clear that trial courts have broad 6 discretion to consider whatever it deems appropriate in deciding new 7 trial motions in order to insure the fundamental fairness of the process
8 and to protect the defendants' unwavering right to due process:

9 "The power to grant a new trial on...nonstatutory grounds obviously 10 is derived from the trial courts constitutional duty to insure an accused 11 a fair trial...It is axiomatic that when an accused is denied that fair
12 and impartial trial guaranteed by law, such procedure amounts to a denial 13 of due process of law..." Id at 110.

15
16 This motion is addressed to the trial courts' discretion to grant 17 a new trial when the evidence is insufficient to support the verdict and 18 when the trial itself was fundamentally unfair. As illustrated above, 19 there a few limits the law places on the court in exercising its 20 discretion in deciding this motion.

21 It is important for the court to note that Mr.Gunns' request is 22 based on the totality of the circumstances presented by the trial and 23 its' aftermath. He concedes that, standing only, the perjury of the 24 officers may be insufficient to warrant a new trial. Similarly, he 25 concedes that the letter from the foreman is not evidence of jury
26 misconduct per se. Frankly, the defense concedes that the post verdict 27 interviews did not reveal the existence of the standard instances of 28 misconduct that mormally form a good faith basis for a new trial request

1 based on those grounds. The defense contends, however, that the court may 2 consider such juror sentiment as one of the circumstances it may evaluate 3 in deciding this motion. It is submitted that when you had the instances 4 of perjury to the clearly expressed pro-prosecution bias of the jury with 5 the weakness of the evidence presented to support the verdict you have 6 a case where due process requires a new trial because the first one was 7 fundamentally unfair.

8 As demonstrated by the above authority the court must determine 9 whether the jury in this case did act "intelligently and justly" and be 10 satisfied that the probative force of the evidence viewed as a whole was 11 sufficient to sustain the verdict rendered.

12 It is respectfully submitted, based on the foregoing, that the jury 13 did not act intelligently and justly and that the evidence was 14 insufficient to support the verdicts.

15 CONCLUSION

16 For all the reasons stated, Mr. Gunn respectfully requests that you
17 grant him a new trial.

We conclude Gunn made the required prima facie showing of good cause for disclosure of the jurors' identifying information. Gunn's motion for disclosure relied on the content of the juror's letter to establish a prima facie showing of good cause. The letter's statement that "had the jury been less proactive or less intelligent there would not have been a conviction," together with other statements in the letter, support a reasonable inference that there may have been jury bias or misconduct. Although the juror's letter by itself does not show conclusively either that the jury was biased or that the jury committed misconduct by convicting Gunn without sufficient evidence, it can reasonably be inferred from the letter's statements that the jurors may have engaged in improper actions in "proactively" deciding Gunn's guilt or innocence. Gunn should be given a reasonable opportunity to contact the jurors and determine whether there was, in fact, any juror bias or misconduct.

Because the statements in the juror's letter support a reasonable inference or belief that there may have been jury bias or misconduct, the trial court erred by finding that Gunn did not make the required prima facie showing of good cause for disclosure of the jurors' identifying information. (§ 237, subd. (b); People v. Rhodes, supra, 212 Cal.App.3d at pp. 551-552.) Therefore, the court abused its discretion by denying Gunn's motion for disclosure of juror identifying information. (People v. Townsel, supra, 20 Cal.4th at p. 1096; People v. Jones, supra, 17 Cal.4th at p. 317.) On remand, the trial court shall issue a new order granting Gunn's request and shall release to Gunn's counsel personal juror identifying information regarding the jurors in this case. Gunn shall then

DECLARATION OF NANCY J. KING

I, Nancy J King, do hereby declare:

1. I am an attorney licensed to practice law in the State of California, Bar Number 163477;

2. I represented Kevin Gunn in appellate procedures in Case Numbers D035782 and D041821;

3. During the appeal, I did not raise any issue challenging the procedure by which witnesses identified a vehicle. The reason I did not challenge the identification process was because it was not, in my opinion, an issue that would have a reasonable chance of success in the Court of Appeal. I was not aware of any authority by which a judge would have sustained an objection to the evidence, or if such an objection were erroneously overruled, that would have resulted in a finding of prejudice by the Court of Appeal.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

Description: order denying Petition For writ of habeas corpus

FILED
Clerk of the Superior Court

FEB 01 2008

By: AA, Deputy

THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA
IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF SAN DIEGO

KEVIN GUNN,)

Petitioner.)

HC 18350
SCD 144476

OF HABEAS CORPUS

FOLLOWS:

On September 17, 1999, a jury convicted petitioner of two counts of Robbery (Pen. Code § 211). One of the counts carried an enhancement pursuant to Penal Code section 667. The court sentenced petitioner to 17 years. Defendant filed a timely notice of appeal. In the appeal, petitioner raised issues of (1) insufficient evidence to support the judgment, (2) trial court error by (a) excluding evidence of third party culpability, (b) denying a motion for disclosure of juror identifying information, and (c) denying his motion for a new trial. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, but then remanded reversing the orders denying the motion for disclosure of juror information and new trial. After further motion hearings and another appeal, the court of appeal affirmed the guilty judgment on August 17, 2004.

Petitioner filed his first petition for writ of habeas corpus with this court on November 4,

2005. There he alleged ineffective assistance of counsel, newly discovered evidence, paying a witness to testify, sentencing error, and amount of restitution. That petition was denied November 23, 2005. Petitioner filed a second petition claiming there was no credible evidence to prove he committed the crimes he was convicted of. Petitioner contended the trial court erred in excluding testimony regarding potential third party culpability, that there was law enforcement misconduct, perjury, and police bias, and that the trial court erred in refusing the request for juror information by failing to regard the ruling from the 4th District Court of Appeal. Petitioner contends the trial court erred by improperly instructing the jury.

Petitioner filed the current petition on December 18, 2007¹. Petitioner currently contends that his trial counsel was ineffective for failing to challenge the use of a prison prior to enhance his sentence and for advising petitioner to admit that prior. Petitioner contends that the prison prior happened more than five years before his commitment offense and it should not have been used under Penal Code section 667.5. The minutes of the hearing on December 2, 1999 indicate that he admitted a prior Serious Felony pursuant to Penal Code section 667(a)(1), not section 667.5.

The abstract of judgment indicates petitioner received on enhancement under Penal Code section 667, subdivision (a)(1). That subdivision states:

In compliance with subdivision (b) of Section 1385, any person convicted of a serious felony who previously has been convicted of a serious felony in this state or of any offense committed in another jurisdiction which includes all of the elements of any serious felony, shall receive, in addition to the sentence imposed by the court for the present offense, a five-year enhancement for each such prior conviction on charges brought and tried separately. The terms of the present offense and each enhancement shall run consecutively.

Petitioner's argument that his trial attorney did not properly advise him regarding the felony prior is misplaced. First, in adding an enhancement, there is no time limit between a serious felony prior and a subsequent serious felony. Thus, counsel's advise to petitioner regarding admitting the prior serious felony was not ineffective because of the date of the prior ¹ Petitioner actually filed a Motion to Amend his habeas corpus petition that he had filed in November 2007. That petitioner was denied on December 18, 2007, which is the same day the motion to amend was filed. As such the court is treating it as a subsequent petition.

1 offense compared with the date of the current offense.

2 Even if the enhancement was based on Penal Code section 667.5, petitioner has not met
3 his burden of establishing that that enhancement was improper. Penal Code section 667.5, 4 subdivision (b), states "...that no additional term shall be imposed under this subdivision for any 5 prison term served prior to a period of five years in which the defendant remained free of both 6 prison custody and the commission of an offense which results in a felony conviction." Here 7 there is no evidence as to how long petitioner was free of both prison custody and the 8 commission of an offense which results in a felony conviction. Penal Code section 667.5 does 9 not apply to this petition, but if it did petitioner has not satisfactorily demonstrated that he is 10 entitled to relief thereunder.

11 Every petitioner, even one filing in pro per, must set forth a prima facie statement of facts
12 which would entitle him to habeas corpus relief under existing law. (In re Bower (1985) 38
13 Cal.3d 865, 872; In re Hochberg (1970) 2 Cal.3d 870, 875 fn 4.) Vague or conclusionary
14 allegations do not warrant habeas relief. (People v. Duvall (1995) 9 Cal.4th 464, 474.) The 15 petitioner then bears the burden of proving the facts upon which he bases his claim for relief. (In 16 re Riddle (1962) 57 Cal.2d 848, 852.) The petition should include copies of "reasonably
17 available documentary evidence in support of claims, including pertinent portions of trial
18 transcripts and affidavits or declarations." People v. Duvall, supra, 9 Cal.4th at p. 474. Petitioner 19 has failed to meet this burden.

20 The petition is therefore denied.

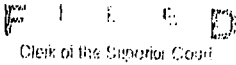

21 A copy of this Order shall be served upon Petitioner and the San Diego Office of the 22 District Attorney.

23 IT IS SO ORDERED.
